

HARRIMAN'S DEATH IS A SUBJECT OF CONJECTURE

According To His Family, The Most Noted Physicians In The World Could Not Diagnose His Case.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Sept. 10.—A statement was given out at the Union Pacific headquarters today denying that E. H. Harriman died at 1:30 p. m. yesterday and placing the time of his death at 3:35 p. m.
Surgeons Didn't Know.
New York, Sept. 10.—According to members of the family no operation was performed because the most noted physicians and surgeons in the world had failed to diagnose the case, and as they did not know what was the matter with him they could do nothing for him.

LA FOLLETTE HAS PLANS ALL MADE

WILL BRING HIS LIEUTENANTS TO MILWAUKEE FOR BIG CONFERENCE.

GATHERING OF THE CLANS

Cry Has Gone Forth That Active Work Must Begin at Once to Save the Senate Seat.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 9.—Senator Robert M. La Follette will hold a big "pow-wow" with his political followers in Milwaukee next week, beginning Wednesday, and during the four days thereafter careful plans will be made for the struggle which is to end with the sending of the present senior senator to Washington for a second term of six years or retire him to devote his time to the lecture platform, to editing his weekly political publication, or to cultivating the beautiful acres of his Maple Bluff farm.

Senator La Follette has just returned after three weeks of daily lectures in the middle west and will devote a few days to matter of business detail connected with his magazine, which is becoming a matter of large demand upon his attention, both as to the business and editorial features.

Early next week he will take possession of a suite of rooms in a Milwaukee hotel, either the Plunkington or the Republica house, and on Wednesday the faithful pilgrims will stream in. Senator La Follette will stream in. Senator La Follette will stream in.

Through sleeping and buffet coaches as well as day passenger and freight cars over a system of interurban railroads extending from Wausau, via Stevens Point, Portage, Madison, Janesville, Rockford, and Elgin, to Chicago. Is this not a pleasant fancy to conjure with?

Two men who arrived here today from an eight weeks' tour and inspection of the central and south central sections of Wisconsin appear to be convinced that the project is entirely feasible, as a business proposition and will report back to the parties they represent. The identity of the latter is not divulged. The "explorers" are deeply impressed with the advantages of cheap water power afforded by the Wisconsin river. There is from 5,000 to 6,000 horse-power available at Trap City, 25 miles above Wausau; like amounts at Mosinee, 25 miles below Wausau and other points along the route, and then there is the big Kishwaukee dam, plant which can develop 25,000 horse-power. The current can be carried 150 miles without any great loss from leakage.

C. F. Knowlton, of Janesville, Ohio, and Allen P. Russell, of Baltimore are the two gentlemen who are looking over the field. They talked very reluctantly of their project at the Grand hotel this morning, insisting that it was not yet in sufficiently definite form for newspaper discussion. They made it clear, however, that co-operation with the existing lines and roads in process of building would be the program and policy.

DID HARRIMAN DIE OF A MALIGNANT CANCER?

Vienna, Sept. 10.—Prof. Adolf Struempell, the Viennese specialist whom the late E. H. Harriman came to Europe to consult, now admits when he saw Harriman in July he diagnosed his complaint as a cancer. Signs of Sorrow
New York, Sept. 10.—Signs of sorrow at the death of Harriman were numerous in the financial district today. The flag of the Stock Exchange was at half-mast and a similar tribute was paid by other institutions and banking houses.

tively not be induced to enter politics again, and they pass off the Cook talk with the remark that "it's a cold day when Sam Cook is not a willing subject to harmonize the party if the means be his own election to some place of honor."

There is reason to believe that the candidate of the opposition is quite well understood among those who would not consent to the re-election of La Follette without a fight, and while no announcement has been made, and in fact, apparent efforts are being made to hold back the opening of the campaign, some such understanding has been reached, possibly even so far as naming the candidate.

It has been "tipped off" here among the men who do not follow the La Follette organization that L. D. Harvey, former state superintendent of public instruction, who was defeated for re-nomination for that office at the time when the independent book companies gave $2,000 to the La Follette campaign, would be the man to oppose the senator in the next campaign. At any rate, La Follette has made elaborate preparations for starting the music during state fair week, and he is certainly spreading among his friends the cry of alarm.

ELECTRIC LINES THRO' TO WAUSAU

TWO VISITORS WITH BIG PLAN HERE TODAY.

TOURED CORE OF STATE

For Eight Weeks And Found Outlook Very Promising—Project Vaguely Outlined.

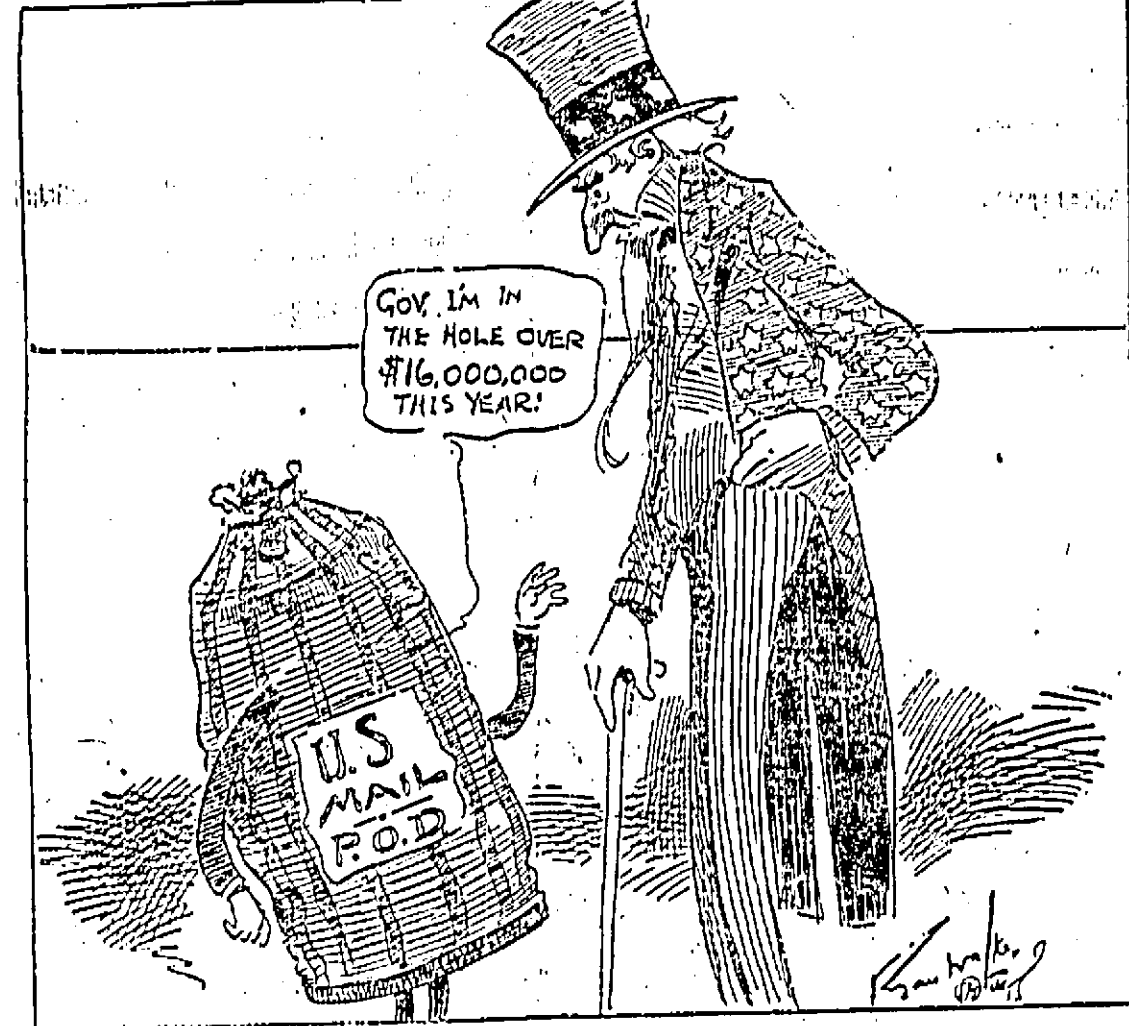

Through sleeping and buffet coaches as well as day passenger and freight cars over a system of interurban railroads extending from Wausau, via Stevens Point, Portage, Madison, Janesville, Rockford, and Elgin, to Chicago. Is this not a pleasant fancy to conjure with?

Two men who arrived here today from an eight weeks' tour and inspection of the central and south central sections of Wisconsin appear to be convinced that the project is entirely feasible, as a business proposition and will report back to the parties they represent. C. F. Knowlton, of Janesville, Ohio, and Allen P. Russell, of Baltimore are the two gentlemen who are looking over the field. They talked very reluctantly of their project at the Grand hotel this morning, insisting that it was not yet in sufficiently definite form for newspaper discussion. They made it clear, however, that co-operation with the existing lines and roads in process of building would be the program and policy.

At the same time they made a very careful examination of the franchise granted to the Cincinnati Construction company last March, for an interurban line from Janesville to Madison, and took note of the fact that the grant will be forfeited next summer in case the promoters do not have the road in process of building by that time.

Said Mr. Russell: "The lines from Madison to Janesville, and Portage to Madison would be good-paying propositions in any event. Further north the advantage of cheap water-power would be the greatest factor to be reckoned with. The day is certainly coming when this section is likely to have the same luxuries of interurban travel as afforded by the Elgin, Aurora, & Chicago line, for instance. How soon, is of course a matter of conjecture. We have simply been looking over the ground. It nothing comes of it, why then our two months' time is wasted."

Uncle Sam: I hope the time will come when you can support yourself. The Postoffice deficit this year is over $16,000,000.—News Item.

TALK AMALGAMATION OF CARMEN'S UNIONS

International Brotherhood Meeting To-day in Atlanta Will Decide As To Joining With Other Body.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 10.—Members of the International Brotherhood of Tailors and Upholsterers are assembled in this city for the organization's twelfth biennial convention. The convention will be in session during the next few days and will be attended by about 2,000 delegates from various parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico. The principal business of the convention, aside from the customary reports and election of officers, will be the consideration of plans for the proposed amalgamation of the brotherhood with the National Car Workers. The project for a union of the two bodies has been under way for some time and it is believed that it will be consummated at the present convention. The combined organization would have a membership extending 60,000, which would place it numerically among the foremost labor organizations in America.

TAFT IS TO INVADE OPPONENTS' COUNTRY

At St. Paul He Will Be Greeted By Governor Johnson and Prominent Democrats.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Saint Paul, Minn., Sept. 10.—The keenest interest is manifested tonight in the news which has reached North-western political circles that Gov. John A. Johnson has been invited to deliver an address at the coming Taft dinner, at which the President will sit down with 600 leading Saint Paul business men at an elaborate feast at the Auditorium. Mayor Daniel J. Lawler, another prominent democrat, has also been asked to deliver an address, owing to the strange situation under which it falls to a democratic mayor and a democratic governor to welcome the president and leader of the republican party to a republican city and state. It is expected that Gov. Johnson will use the occasion to express his pleasure at the opportunity of welcoming the president and as for the mayor, the grand old party is unfortunately out of power in Saint Paul and if anyone welcomes the president for the city it must be a democrat since the republican office holders are mighty few and not prominent enough for the public eye to catch them.

There is an undercurrent of strong political interest in the president's visit. Johnson sentiment is strong in both the city and state and it has been given out by the president's political friends that in Minnesota he will answer Gov. Johnson's Seattle speech, and say something which may have an important effect upon developments preceding the next national election. It is not expected that Gov. Johnson will touch upon political subjects should he accept the invitation, but his friends show no hesitation in stating that the governor will seek an early opportunity of making a forcible reply, should the president in the touch upon the subjects covered in the Seattle address, during his two speeches in the Northwest.

LABOR MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT COMING

Will Crooks, Well-Known in Britain Will Visit in American Cities On World Tour.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Sept. 10.—William Crooks, the well-known labor member of parliament, sailed today on a tour that will take him around the world. He is accompanied by his wife, who also has acquired prominence in labor movements in England, and the two plan to make exhaustive investigations into labor and industrial conditions in the principal countries of the world. They will spend three weeks in Canada and later will visit many of the chief cities of the United States. "Will" Crooks, as he is popularly known, is one of the most striking personalities in English public life today. As a trembling wreck of nine he was driven by sheer starvation to seek refuge in a workhouse. In later years he had the satisfaction of becoming chairman of the same board of guardians that had sent him into the workhouse as a child of age he was apprenticed to a blacksmith. When fourteen he was earning only $1.50 a week at the smithy. Then he changed to the trade of cooper and served a seven year apprenticeship. Then, in 1876, being prominent in some small trade dispute, he lost his apprenticeship and had to go on a tramp searching for a livelihood. Christmas Day, 1878, saw him still a tramp, without boots, without a penny in his pocket. Then his luck took a turn. By sheer hard work he progressed till he became a master cooper and a ruling spirit in labor questions. His reward came in 1902, when he captured the conservative stronghold of Woolwich and was returned to parliament more than three thousand votes to spare.

HOODS "EMBALM" THE SUPREME SNARK

Fun Of Lumbermen's Social Order Will Be Continued With Banquet and Ceremonies Tonight.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 10.—This was another busy day for the members of the Concentrated Order of Hood Hoods, in eighteenth annual convention here. Two sessions for the transaction of business relating to the affairs of the order were held during the day. A banquet at the Arlington hotel, beginning at nine minutes past nine, is the feature of tonight's program. One of the chief events of the convention will be the "embalming" tomorrow of Platt H. Walker of Minneapolis, Supreme Snark of the Universe, who, by virtue of the ceremony, will be given the degree of "immunity" and will become a defunct member of the ancient house. The election of a new snark, and of a Secretary, Treasurer, and other officers of the order will also take place at the concluding session tomorrow. The gathering will wind up with an old-fashioned barbecue at Whittington Park.

DEMOCRATIC LEAGUE ADOPTS A PLATFORM

Convention of New Democrats Names New Party And Formulates a Platform.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Saratoga, N. Y., Sept. 10.—After the adoption of a declaration of principles which included the endorsement of the federal income tax and naming the organization the "Democratic League," the democratic conference adjourned today. The adoption of an income tax clause was accomplished only after an extended debate. The league pledges loyal support to the federal government in the exercise of its constitutional powers, demands a tariff for revenue only, equal and uniform taxation; abandonment of "imperialistic" ventures in the Philippines; home rule and local self-government; economy in government expenditure; the election of senators by the people; and the enforcement of all laws against trusts.

BRONZE STATUE OF ALASKA'S "FATHER"

Memorial to Seward, the Great Secretary of War, Unveiled at Seattle Exposition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Seattle, Wash., Sept. 10.—A bronze statue of Secretary of War William H. Seward, "father of Alaska," who bought for a trifling sum the richest colonial possession of Russia, was unveiled today in front of the Seward mansion on Seward avenue, at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The mansion was copied after the Seward home in Auburn, N. Y., and is now York's building at the fair. Seward's son delivered the oration at today's unveiling and his grandson was present. Harriet May Maxter, granddaughter of former Governor McGraw of Washington, drew the cord and unveiled the statue while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

PLAY FIRST SETS FOR THE TROPHY

BRITISH AND AMERICAN TENNIS PLAYERS IN PRELIMINARY MATCHES.

VICTORS AND AUSTRALIANS

Will Then Compete For International Lawn Tennis Cup Offered By D. F. Davis in 1900.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 10.—A large number of followers of lawn tennis turned out at Germantown today to watch the opening of the Davis Cup preliminary matches. The matches, which will continue four days, are to decide whether an American or British team shall go to Australia to try for the trophy.

The English team is made up of J. C. Parke, N. C. Crawley and C. P. Dixon. The American contestants are W. J. Clothier, H. H. Hackett, W. A. Larned and F. F. Little. Since Dwight F. Davis, of St. Louis, offered the trophy which bears his name for an international lawn tennis match in 1900 many countries have interested themselves in the competition. The trophy passed from America to England and from England to Australia. Besides these three Belgium, France and Australia challenged for the bowl. The last three were outclassed in the attempts, none of their players ever having won a match against the teams they drew. In the eight competitions held since it was first offered England and America have been contenders seven times each. Australia won the trophy on the third attempt, and successfully defended it last year.

After Mr. Davis offered the trophy the British sent over in 1900 a team made up of A. W. Gore, E. D. Black and H. Rogers-Barnett. America's players were Vincent D. Whitman, Holcombe Ward and the donor, Dwight F. Davis. The Americans were victorious.

The year following a challenge was made by the British, but at the last moment notice was sent that a team could not be made up. However, the year following, 1902, the English sent across again after the trophy. Dr. J. Pim and the Dohertys were the challengers. Reginald Doherty took three sets and beat Larned. Pim won a set from Whitman, but the latter responded by defeating the British champion of 1893 and 1894, a love set. The other singles were played on the same day and the cup was won again then and there. Larned defeated Pim and Whitman defeated Doherty, both in straight sets. The Dohertys gave an exhibition of their quality by defeating Ward and Davis, the American champions.

The fatal lawn tennis year for the United States was 1903. At Longwood the English renewed the struggle for the bowl. They were victorious and returned with the coveted trophy to England.

America did not send a team in 1904. The Belgians did and were beaten 5-0. The next year, 1905, was the banner year for the cup. Owing to the entry of so many teams play had to split up. America defeated France 5-0 and Australia 4-0 in the same year. Australia beat the Australians 5-0. The Americans were outclassed in the final with England. Ward had to withdraw because of a death in his family, and Clothier, who took his place, did not do anything in the one match he played.

The disaster to Wright and the poor play of Krolgh Collins, the Westerner, before the American team left in 1906 discounted in advance the chances of the Americans. They were successful in the preliminaries, however, but in the finals they were beaten by the British five straight.

The matches of 1907 resulted in a victory for the Australians. Norman E. Brookes and Anthony F. Wilding, who carried the trophy away from the country it had adorned since England defeated America in 1903. Last year, at Melbourne, Brookes and Wilding easily defeated Wright and Alexander, the American challengers. In doubles, and Wilding defeated Alexander in singles.

Should the Americans defeat the British in the matches now being played on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club an American team will sail for Australia the first week in October to meet the holding nation in the challenge competition for the cup.

PARKER-MACHINE CO. GAME SEPTEMBER 18

Championship and Exhibition Contest of Commercial League Will Be Held at Fair Grounds.

The championship and exhibition game of the Commercial League baseball team between the Janesville Machine company and the Parker-Pon company baseball teams will be played Saturday, September 18, at the Fair Grounds. This was decided at a meeting of the directors of the league held Wednesday evening. The time of the game was not then settled upon but the managers of the two teams have agreed that it should be called at two-thirty sharp. Both teams are very anxious to secure the cup and will have their best players on hand, so that the contest promises to be a fast, exciting one. The Machine company are counting on Butters, their star man, being able to do their twisting for them on that day, with Doherty behind the bat. Doherty will be in the box for the Parker-Pon team with Hall as backstop. Miller will undoubtedly be secured to umpire the game. As this game will be an exhibition game an admission fee of twenty-five cents will be charged. The proceeds will be used as a fund to pay for a banquet for the players who took part in the league games this season.

"MINUTE MEN" WERE BEATEN BY "HIGHS"

Milton School Players Defeated "Continental" in Contest Yesterday

By 3 to 1 Score.
(Special to the Gazette.)
Milton, Sept. 10.—The "Highs" and "Minute Men" played ball yesterday afternoon and the scholars won by a score of three to one. Neither team could do much with the "stick" and errors were about a tie. The only double play of the game was engineered by little "Joo" Garriaga, Clarke, who pitched for the "Highs," and the Highs fanning the air most of the time, while Miller had the "Continental" swinging at space nearly as often.

Batteries—Miller and Whitford; Clarke and Johnson.
Eighty-six pupils in the high school and one hundred and thirty-seven in the grades. This is the official count of pupils enrolled for the present term. The Cranall family reunion will be held in the park, Wednesday, Sept. 22. The funeral of the late Mrs. G. S. Davy of Janesville was held at the Congregational church yesterday afternoon, Rev. F. O. Jackson, officiating. The Swastika club met with Mrs. E. D. Bliss yesterday.

Rural Carrier Anderson begins his annual leave tomorrow. Substitute Granger serving the route.

COOK'S POPULARITY SHOWN IN BUSINESS

Cook Haircuts, Sandwiches, Sundaes, Cocktails and Salads Are All the Rage.

"Gimme a Dr. Cook haircut and gimme it quick."

So spoke an incoming customer at a Milwaukee street barber shop last night. Promptly the barber started. With the clippers he promptly shifted the environs of the grass crop, clipping the lawn very close all around, up the sides and parallel to the top. Except for a ridge from the rear center to the front the dome of thought showed through strong. The ridge of hair was left intact. Doffly the barber combed it up from the sides, sloping it like the side of a glacier. From the front it rose in a stiff pompadour, firm, uncompromising and forbidding. It lent an aggressive cast to the face.

That is a Dr. Cook haircut. A leading tonsorial artist claims that the hair should be cut closely from the back of the neck to the front, leaving a little bunch of the untrimmed in front only. Others differ and say there should be a ridge from the pole running south to a point midway above the eyes.

What indicates the homeward route? they explain. In the down town fashionable district they are serving a Dr. Cook sandwich. You pry the pieces of bread apart and discover that it is mostly ham fat, with a small dot of meat in the center.

There is a Dr. Cook cup of coffee at the leading restaurants too. It has an inch high collar of whipped cream and costs ten cents.

The soda fountains are serving a Dr. Cook sundae, a half globe of pure white ice cream, flat side down. It is rimmed with lavender syrup and across its snow-like surface leads a thin trail of chocolate terminating at the apex with a maraschino cherry with a red and white candy straw stuck through it. That's the pole.

And there is a north pole cocktail too. Six predominates. It is fringed with quantities of ice, served very cold and capped with a white cherry. There is also a polar dash salad, a mountain of all sorts of delicious things coated with finely chopped celery for snow, lapped with a straw of white wash which is decorated with a tiny bow of red, white and blue ribbon. It is highly indigestible, but it makes a tremendous appeal to the patriotic imagination.

NOT HALF OF LEAF CROP IN THE SHEDS

Harvest Was Postponed by Cold Weather Which Prevailed Last Week—Some of the Transactions.

The buying movement has been worked more strenuously the past week than any time since its inception, says the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter; for since the frost the season of operation has shifted to the southern growing section which has been honeycombed with buyers riding in all directions. New impetus has been given to the movement, too, by the turning loose of the buyers of the American Clear Co. this week. As the campaign gets warmer prices, too, have been springing a bit. While the great bulk of the contracts are yet kept around the 10-cent mark, there has been more frequent raise always that figure than heretofore. Trading is easy when a buyer talks in cents or above. Transactions might be reported covering thousands of acres but the following will suffice to show the trend of prices.

A cool week has delayed the ripening of the crop and likewise postponed the harvest. It is doubtful if half the acreage of the state is yet in the sheds and much as it is deplored it is pretty certain that some unripe tobacco is being cut.

Aside from a steady trading in old leaf from growers' hands there are some larger transactions being consummated. A 150-cuse picking of '08 has been sold by Henry Thronson to Cullen & Well. It is reported that the Equity holding of Vernon county '08 has been sold. A still larger deal is said to have been consummated in the east involving the sale of 3,000 cases of '08 Wisconsin by the Bagley concern of Detroit, which was picked by the Green Tobacco company at Janesville.

The shipments out of storage reach 300 cases from this market to all points for the week past.

WILL CELEBRATE 93RD BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Susan Russell is One of the Oldest Janesville Pioneers—in Very Feeble Health.

Mrs. Susan Russell, who is one of the oldest of the pioneer settlers of Janesville, will celebrate her 93rd birthday tomorrow. Her health is not very good and the celebration will be a quiet one. Her sister, Mrs. George Tarrant of Durand, Wis., has arrived here for the occasion and a niece, Mrs. Charles Anthony of Oregon, will be here tomorrow.

CURRENT ITEMS.

Left for Lemon, S. D.: Mrs. Alta Gustie, daughter of Postmaster A. A. Anderson, departed last evening for Lemon, South Dakota, where she will join her husband, C. J. The Fall Clothes Show Is Now Ready For You Here.

It's a rattling good exhibit, too, and any man who is desirous of knowing WHAT'S WHAT in autumn fashions will be given first hand information. With the present showing Rehberg's will move up a peg in your estimation. Greater style values and bigger dollars' worth of clothes value are the distinguishing marks of our new fall offerings. They await your approval.

are distinguished from all others by their broad concave shoulders, full chests and out of the ordinary styles. They are made tastier, natter and smarter than most clothes.

Hirsch Wickwire are Especially for Men of more settled tastes, and vie in workmanship with custom made clothing at twice the price. Hirsch-Wickwire offer exclusive patterns, perfection of make and durability of service. Very few of our patrons on this line ever change.

Vicking System Clothes

are pointed towards young men who desire the last word in fanciful style departures. They show new touches in design so much desired, yet they never swerve from refinement or good taste. They express ultra pattern effects and color treatment that is classy, not loud.

Fall Prices Range $10, $15, $20, $25, $30 and Intermediate Prices

Viking Clothing for boys, $5.00.
Special Offer—Viking Suits, straight pants, guaranteed not to rip, worth double, now $2.50.

are lines that met with unrivaled success last season, and this year the makers have gone to even greater efforts to surpass anything at these prices. The new short vamp, shield tip with a good swing, are fashion hits. We have not been backward either; as our assortments this fall will embrace more complete lines, and wider range of styles, than heretofore.

SELBY SHOES FOR LADIES
AT $2.50 TO $4.00
QUEEN QUALITY SHOES FOR LADIES AT $3 TO $4
are now displayed in the handsome short tip shield and wing effects, high tops, and the newest creations in cloth tops. These lines never appealed more strongly to ladies of refined taste, in their exquisite lines, beautiful styles and fineness of manufacture. There is an unequalled showing here now, and you will not want to put off buying when you see the tempting line we offer.

That there are must be exercised by the different officials on the Wisconsin Division in regard to the matter of allowing engineers to lay off at any time, is the substance of an order issued by Master Mechanic E. H. Wade of the Wisconsin division. At the present time there are one hundred Wisconsin division engineers laying off, and should there be a sudden call for extra men, they could not be secured. Two engineers for every engine has been the usual rule but should the present state of affairs continue, three would be necessary. In the future, if an engineer wishes to lay off, he must secure permission from the foreman or the master mechanic.

One of the numerous vice-presidents of the road arrived in Janesville this noon on 521, in private car No. 403 on the way to Clyman. Engine 633, in charge of Engineer Nichols, was taken from the train and another engine took the train forward.

A Wisconsin division pool engine, number 1348, is being held in the shops for repairs.

John Murphy is visiting in Chicago today.

Train 511 was delayed about fifteen minutes at Janesville today on account of a broken brass.

Switch-Tender O'Grady returned to work at the South Janesville yards today.

Will McDonald has ambitions along the "tick tick" line and took a whirl at the keys this morning. What the repair men said when they got the message is unprintable.

The heavy mist which obscured the vision last night was responsible for one slight accident. Switch-engine 167 struck the derrick at the belt line early this morning and was off the track for about five minutes.

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. Engineer Willard and Fireman McAniff took out a passenger special this morning at 8:50 to Monroe for the Green county fair, with engine 835.

A flu on engine 850 blew out this morning and delayed the way freight, number 91, about an hour. Engineer Patter and Fireman Rooney took the train out at 8:15.

Engineer Schuker and Fireman Barker took 165 out last night.

Boller-Washer James Ryan left for Monroe this morning to take care of the Green county fair engine, 835.

M. Connell is relieving Switchman Kruse today.

C. J. Buckingham, traveling passenger agent for the Union Pacific Ry., is in Janesville today.

Here's a Nuisance in Turkey.

As the Turkish people generally dislike wild game as a food, hares have increased in such numbers in some districts as to become a nuisance and threaten crops. At Angora some 60,000 are killed annually for the sake of the fur, which is shipped to Marseilles and used in the manufacture of hats.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT WILL SPOIL PLEASURE OF VISIT

Miss Mary Willson of Madison, while visiting in Clinton, sprained her ankle and tore ligaments. (Special to this Gazette.) Clinton, Sept. 9.—Miss Mary Willson of Madison, who is visiting her old school friends here, had the misfortune to fall Wednesday, and very severely sprained her left ankle and tore the ligaments loose. She will be laid up for several weeks.

John C. Bradley, who financed Dr. Cook's arctic expedition.

Funds and equipment for Dr. Cook's expedition to the north pole generally are known to have been supplied by John R. Bradley, the "silent" partner of E. R. Bradley, who has a country-wide reputation as a sportsman and horseman.

In Chicago the Bradley brothers are familiar characters, although both of them have passed most of their time in other parts of the country since racing was stopped here. In addition to their racing stable, they own the Hotel Del Prado on the Midway, a tailoring establishment and the gambling houses at Palm Beach and other Florida resorts.

"Jack" Bradley, who built the schooner John R. Bradley for Dr. Cook and furnished the cash, going with the party himself as far as the Arctic ocean, declared last night in New York that he expected nothing else but victory for Dr. Cook.

"I have not heard a word from Dr. Cook yet," said Mr. Bradley, "and I don't expect to hear from him until he reaches Copenhagen, but I am not a bit surprised that he has succeeded. It is needless to say that I am greatly gratified."

"The last time I saw Dr. Cook was on Christmas day, 1907, when I shook hands with him on the Midway, and I wish him good luck. We were then in the Arctic ocean and that day he was to make his start in the unapproachable cold or midwinter for the pole, and I to start back for more southerly climes and family home."

Mr. Bradley said Dr. Cook would cable him from Copenhagen on reaching there and at that time he might have something more to say in connection with the expedition.

How Mr. Bradley came to send his expedition to the north pole is an interesting story of itself. Primarily, he did not wish to go to the pole, but a strictly polar expedition of discovery, but having hunted big game in every other quarter of the globe, and slaying tigers and rhinoceros to conquer, he decided to shoot polar bears, seals and such other game as could be found in the northern fringe of this continent. He wanted sport, and Dr. Cook, who has become notable as the first man to conquer Mt. McKinley in Alaska, the tallest and bleakest peak in North America, if not in the hemisphere, went along as a companion and to make scientific observations.

Mr. Bradley said last night that he had the Bradley built in Gloucester, Mass., in the summer of 1907, especially for the polar hunting trip. At what cost to himself he would not say at this time, he declared but he paid for it out of his own pocket, and equipped it for a two years' trip. The whole cost, however, of the trip did not run over $15,000.

Whatever were the intentions of Mr. Bradley and Dr. Cook when they sailed from Gloucester in the fall of 1907, their purpose crystallized when they reached the Arctic regions around Christmas time, and Mr. Bradley found that shooting lazy and clumsy polar bears on the ice was a sport when compared with being chased with a 4,000 pound rhinoceros in the jungle of Africa. Mr. Bradley determined to come home and to permit Dr. Cook to take the vessel on an expedition to discover the pole.

Gossip.

"I don't like those women who gossip about others, do you?" "I should say not. Now, there's Mrs. Gadsley. She's always telling mean things about her neighbors. And Mrs. Hamerton talks perfectly dreadful about her friends. Thank goodness, I never say anything about nobody!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

Music Carnival Extraordinary.

D'Urban and his wonderful concert band won additional favor with their two remarkable concerts yesterday afternoon and last evening. There were plenty of popular numbers interspersed with the big grand opera compositions of Gounod, Strauss, and Verdi, and Signor Manzi, master of the euphonium, Di Natale, wizard of the trombone, Di Dominici, the trumpet artist, and Stea, the piccolo conjurer, as usual, won the plaudits of the listeners with their fine execution of the more intricate music. Perrotto made the kettle drums rumble and roar and Plasso played a wonderful tattoo with the sticks in Suppe's thrilling "Light Cavalry" overture and the trumpet and trombone soloists wove magic colors into the haunting prelude to the love duet in "Traviata." The vocal players also proved themselves accomplished whistlers in a refrain from Volstead's "Jolly Polka."

In place of Miss Muriel Window whose solo work during the early part of the week was seriously impaired by a severe cold, Miss Maude Bracco sang the beautiful Spanish ballad, "Carmenuela," "Annie Laurie," and an "Ave Maria," and despite the very brief time permitted for rehearsals and the fact that it was her first appearance with a concert band, won instant favor with the listeners. She will sing at all the concerts during the balance of the week.

Over all the entertainment the accomplished leader, ruled supreme, evoking the thrills of the roll, the April shower, and the tempest, at will, with his magic wand. Tonight is "request night," and judging from the large number of communications filed at the box office the band will be kept busy until midnight in its commendable effort to give the people just what they want.

BAKER'S DRUG STORE

The Gazette carries by far the largest amount of advertising of all mediums in Janesville.

Most of its advertisers use The Gazette exclusively.

Tie these two facts together and they spell RESULTS.

One reason is that The Gazette reaches most everybody.

Another reason is that a dollar spent in Gazette advertising will give you seven times as much publicity as you get through any other medium in Janesville.

Advertising prominence in this paper is invaluable to your business.

WHO'S YOUR TAILOR?

YOU don't need to pay a millionaire's price to have your clothes made to your individual ideas and have them fit you as they should. Style no longer costs a Fifth Avenue's tailor bill. It is our business to give to good dressers in Janesville the highest class of custom tailoring—to build clothes to order for you—and do it at a price perhaps even lower than your present clothes outlay. We take your measure by a system so ingenious that it gives us a virtual blue print of your body. And we build the clothes, seam for seam, line for line and stitch for stitch, to fit those measures.

Our Prices Within the Reach of All.

Your money goes far here at from $10 to $45. Can you buy a ready-to-wear suit any cheaper? To any person price is an important factor. No one can question the prices we charge. Maybe you think we can't do it for the prices we quote. Try us and see.

The Strong Point.

One of our built-to-your-order suits or overcoats are guaranteed to fit your every idea, your body requirement. Here you pick your own fabric, your own style. And we give our cutter every important specification of your body—eighteen of your body measurements over which to drape your suit.

When your suit is ready there is a guarantee attached to it that says plainly: "If this suit does not satisfy in every respect, you need not accept it or pay one penny."

Let Us Tailor Your Fall Suit or Overcoat

We have over 500 beautiful Fall and Winter patterns on display, and an expert measure taker awaiting a call from you. Please let us show you these woolsens and explain the superlative features of our tailoring service.

All Pure Wool

If all-wool fabrics were the rule in men's clothes, there wouldn't be so much reason for warning you against the cheap cotton mixtures.

But the cotton mixtures are the rule, not the exception. A very large percentage of men's clothing has more or less cotton woven into the fabric.

Even if the percentage of cotton is small, you don't like to feel that you've paid an all-wool price for cotton.

You can easily be safe; our cloths are of all-wool quality always.

A Wealth of Patterns.

You can pick your cloth from the finest assortment of woolsens in town. For the current season alone we display over 500 innovations in exclusive weaves and colorings—the cream of the season's cloth successes—ready for you.

Our Guarantee

No man need gamble with his clothes purchases when he places an order with us. Note the many features our guarantee covers. It warrants the garments to keep its Style and Fit Until Completely Worn Out. No ready-made suit is sold with a guarantee like that.

No Delays

There are no aggravating delays when you place an order with us for a suit or overcoat. We deliver on a schedule that is absolutely dependable.

YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF

TO be well dressed. Remember this is a tailoring house that any man can afford to patronize and no man can ignore. The various niceties of modern tailoring, the pleasure of a perfect fitting suit of clothes at a low price can best be understood by leaving a single order with us.

HAS MADE CHURCH GIFT OF $4,000

Sum Given by Theodore Ottman to Methodist Church Will Clear Debt on Building and Parsonage.
By the gift of Theodore Ottman of this city, an indebtedness on the Carriage Memorial Methodist Episcopal church and parsonage, will be completely wiped out. Mr. Ottman presents outright to the church the sum of $4,000 which clears the outstanding debt and settles the mortgage on the church property and the parsonage. When the church was dedicated three years ago, there was still sixteen thousand dollars to be paid on it. This was provided for in bonds of $30 each, payable in three years. When these were paid up it was found that with the expenses for repairs, shrinkage on the bonds, and other expenditures, the church would be still $4,000 in debt. This Mr. Ottman offered to pay. Another gift much appreciated is that of some unknown person who gave $5,150 toward paying for the organ in the edifice. The church originally cost $10,000. It was given by W. D. Carrell, of La Crosse, son of the Mr. Carrell in whose honor the church was named. Then, when part of the cost of it has been taken by the members, church societies, Sunday classes and private members, each doing their best to raise the debt.

FOOTBALL SEASON IS OPENED AT J. H. S.

Preliminary Practice for Picking of Team to Represent Local School Held Tonight.
Janesville high school will have a football team this fall. A meeting of those interested in the game was held last evening after school and although but fifteen or sixteen responded, it was thought that enough could be secured not only to make a first team but a second team as well. A number of the heavier men who played last fall have graduated, but considerable good material will be secured from the incoming Freshman class. There seems also to be a plenty of players among the lower classes, who, although not weighty, are quite speedy. These will be somewhat light in responding to the call last night, but it is hoped that they will come out and help in the make-up of this year's eleven.

The first practice was held this evening, quite a good-sized squad coming out for the work. Professor Knudsen, one of the new instructors, will have charge of the training and under his coaching the boys hope for success this season. They will continue their practices for the picking of the team and later on will arrange a schedule of games with other high schools in the vicinity.

Relatives And Friends of Frank Alden, Jr., Are Much Worried Regarding His Whereabouts.
Frank J. Alden, Jr., son of F. J. Alden, who resides at 116 Linn street, has been missing since Wednesday noon and his family and friends are very anxious for tidings of his whereabouts. He was employed as a driver for the Union Pacific Co. company and borrowed the manager's car to go fishing about one o'clock on Wednesday. It is known that he had about $25 on his person at the time. Young Alden is sandy haired, light complexioned, and 29 years of age.

PHYLLIS KELLY SURPRISED BY FRIENDS ON BIRTHDAY

Twenty Young Friends Gathered at Her Home to Celebrate Thirteenth Birthday.
Thirteen young girls, friends of Miss Phyllis Kelly of 118 South 15th street, gathered at her home yesterday to celebrate her thirteenth birthday. The party was arranged by Miss Kelly's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Spunkling, and was more than enjoyed by the youthful guests and their hostess. The day was very agreeably spent in games and other amusements, while dainty refreshments, served on the porch of the home, brought the festivities to a close.

WHO REALLY REACHED POLE?

WHOLE WORLD IS ANXIOUSLY AWAITING FOR COOK AND PEARY PROOFS.

BOTH MEN COMING HOME

Report Received at Sydney Tells of Hardships Encountered by the Commander's Party—Peary's Own Story Turns Feeling to Cook.

New York, Oct. 10.—The two explorers upon whom the world's eye has been fixed during the past few days are busily preparing for their advance to the United States. Cook, in Copenhagen, announced that he had definitely arranged to sail to-morrow on the Oscar II, for New York city.

Peary, according to fragmentary wireless reports, was still delayed at Battle Harbor, Labrador—probably either awaiting the completion of repairs to the Roosevelt, or the arrival of coal.

New Honor for Cook.

The University of Copenhagen conferred upon Dr. Cook the degree of Sc. D. (doctor of science), thereby recognizing, it was pointed out by his friends, in an important official manner, his claim to the discovery of the pole.

In scientific circles, both in America and abroad, the prevailing inclination seems to be to await direct word from both explorers before arriving at a conclusion as to their respective achievements and although a belligerent attitude was still preserved in the two camps, open hostilities were largely suspended.

Suffered Great Hardships.

North Sydney, C. B., Sept. 10.—Private messages from Battle Harbor, where Commander Peary still remains, say the polar party underwent severe experiences in the far northern journey. On one occasion five men were caught in a furious blizzard and were missing for several days. For a time it was supposed they had perished.

The Roosevelt was expected to complete coaling this morning and continue her voyage southward. She is not expected here before Sunday.

Many messages from the United States and Canadian points addressed to Commander Peary have been received here.

Feeling Turns to Cook.

London, Sept. 10.—The immediate effect of the publication of Peary's brief account of his journey here is a certain revulsion of feeling in favor of Dr. Cook, and the adoption of a more judicial and impartial attitude towards both explorers. "The Daily Telegraph" in an editorial says: "Dr. Cook has decided to face the music, and in so doing has greatly redeemed his position in English eyes, and in a large measure has made comment at the present stage both unfair and unwise. So long as the matter between himself and his greater rival is subjudice it is but common justice to concede to both claimants the courtesy of the best construction."

The Morning Post regrets the tone adopted by the extreme partisans and says that even Commander Peary's telegrams savor of the injudicious.

"Both explorers may, for all we know," says the paper, "be mistaken and until proof is forthcoming must both be considered to stand on an equality so far as the race for the pole is concerned."

One of the chief reasons for the revulsion in Dr. Cook's favor is the unexpected swiftness of Peary's sledge journey to and from the pole.

"Peary Story Proves Cook's."

New York, Sept. 10.—"The most marvelous news that has yet come from either of the two polar explorers was the preliminary report of the progress of the Peary expedition," declared Anthony Fiala.

"Commander Peary has accomplished a feat in arctic travel that is astonishing. The return from the pole to Cape Columbia was, he says, negotiated in 16 days. That is at an average of nearly 20 miles a day—a record that puts everything in the line of swiftness heretofore known in the shade."

"The report of Peary," he said, "goes a long way toward substantiating Dr. Cook's story of a attainment. The Peary account of rapid travel showed conclusively that the ice must have been wonderfully smooth—fully as smooth as Dr. Cook's story asserted it to be. I am still convinced that both Cook and Peary reached the pole."

Other Scientists Agree.

Other scientists, comparing the latest dispatches regarding Commander Peary's achievement with the reports which Dr. Cook has sent out, were generally agreed that Peary's findings seem to confirm Dr. Cook's story in several significant particulars and thus far raise no points of disagreement. The scientists were more positive than ever that the controversy can be settled beyond reasonable doubt by an inquiry before a recognized scientific body. Their almost undivided opinion was that Dr. Cook should not be condemned until his story has been proved false by unmistakable evidence.

Offer of Arbitration.

Washington, Sept. 10.—The coast and geodetic survey will undertake to arbitrate the Peary-Cook north pole controversy providing Dr. Cook requests that it should do so.

In view of the fact that Peary has been operating under the directions of the survey it will become the duty of that institution to compute his notes without request from any one, and Acting Superintendent Perkins said that if Cook should so desire the survey would go over his papers also.

"It is a delicate matter," said Mr. Perkins, "to decide the claims in such an important case, but our men are scientists and would be impartial, not to say cold-blooded, in such an investigation, as it would be necessary for them to make in arriving at the comparative merits of the claims of the two men. Moreover, I believe," he continued, "that any conclusion arrived at by the survey would be accepted as controlling."

May Leave It to Danes.

Mr. Perkins admitted that he had received a suggestion looking to such action by the survey, and while saying that the bureau would be willing to undertake the task of arbitration, he had noticed that Dr. Cook had expressed his intention of referring his claims to the University of Copenhagen.

"He could scarcely do better," said Mr. Perkins. "The Danes are a suffering people and for centuries have been engaged in arctic exploration. Their scientific men would be particularly adapted to an inquiry of this character, and I believe that any results arrived at by the university would be accepted as conclusive."

Mr. Perkins said, however, that even if the university should review Dr. Cook's work, the coast and geodetic survey would be willing still later to compare the doctor's notes with Commander Peary's.

The subject, he said, was one of such importance that the world wanted to know the exact truth, and too great pains could not be taken in settling the dispute. He expressed the opinion that the work could be concluded within a month after the notes were submitted.

The coast and geodetic survey is just waking up to the fact that Mr. Peary's achievement is destined to bring fame to it.

"We realize," said Mr. Perkins, "that Mr. Peary has accomplished a great work and the survey is really pleased to be identified with it. Especially is this true because of the fact that Mr. Peary began his official career in connection with this survey."

He then referred to the records to show that soon after graduating from college in 1877 Mr. Peary attached himself to the survey.

Unfriendly Since 1891.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 10.—"The real trouble between Cook and Peary, the explorers, dates back to 1891," said Harry Clairborne, an old friend of Evelyn Baldwin, who was with the two men when jointly they made a dash for the pole. On the 1891 polar expedition, according to Baldwin, said Clairborne, "Peary wanted to take his wife along. Although the other explorers objected, she insisted and went. They did not want to be hampered with a woman."

"When they got into the arctic regions Peary and his wife occupied one and the other men the other of the snow huts. There were two oil stoves in the equipment and Peary used both of these to heat his hut, the other explorers getting along without any heat."

"It happened that all the explorers were cigarette smokers, and that Peary kept possession of the stock, doling the smokes as he chose. These little things, said Baldwin, prejudiced the men against Peary."

In a short time a rather bitter feeling grew up between Peary and Cook, continuing down the entire trip. While on the surface and in the presence of others they seemed to be friends, they were far from such.

"This bitterness of feeling continued for years. In my opinion each will try to discredit the work of the other."

Admiral Dewey Believes Both.

Hot Springs, Va., Sept. 10.—"I have no doubt it will be found that both Peary and Cook reached the goal of their great ambition," commented Admiral George Dewey, who is spending the summer here.

"In view of the regrettable controversy that has arisen in the matter," said the admiral, "I have nothing to say regarding the merits or demerits of the respective claims of the two explorers. We all must wait until we are in possession of the scientific data which the two men are undoubtedly only too eager to give to the world. Meantime I prefer to believe that the claim of each of these distinguished Americans is true."

Mrs. Peary Goes to Sydney.

St. John, N. B., Sept. 10.—Mrs. Robert Peary and party passed through St. John en route from Portland, Me., to Sydney to meet the commander. Mrs. Peary has had no word from her husband since that received at Portland on Wednesday. Mrs. Peary, when informed of Rosa Marvin's death sent the following message to a newspaper in Elmira, N. Y.:

"Please find mother of poor Rosa Marvin, who went north with my husband and lost his life performing a dangerous duty to the world of science. Convey my deep sympathy in this sad hour."

Newspapers Are Enjoined.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Judge Grosscup in the United States circuit court has issued an injunction restraining other newspapers from printing the New York Times' Peary story unless they have obtained permission to use it through the proper sources.

The order of injunction was sweeping in its terms as issued by Judge Grosscup, who held that the story is Peary's own; that there existed grave danger of irreparable injury to the rights of the man who tackled the stars and stripes to the pole; and that the reciprocal copyright agreement between Great Britain and the United States might be seriously violated.

Why He Looked Harassed.

The kind lady had just handed the hungry hobo a sandwich and a hunk of pie. "Poor man!" she said sympathetically. "Are you married?" "No'm," answered the h. h. "I got dis hunted look from bein' chased from place to place by der police."

SUGGESTIVE QUESTIONS

On the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Newspaper Bible Study Club.

(Copyright 1909 by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

September, 12th, 1909.

(Copyright, 1909, by Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.) Close of Paul's Third Missionary Journey.—Acts xxi:1-17.

Golden Text.—The will of the Lord be done.—Acts xxi:14.

Verses 1-3.—Where was Paul bound for?

Had Paul clearly received Divine instructions to go to Jerusalem or was he simply gratifying his own desires? (See Acts xxi:16, 22-23.)

If a devoted man has a longing to go to a place, or to do a thing, is it safe for him to conclude that the longing is of God?

Because there is danger involved in a journey, or an enterprise, in connection with our religion, should we allow our chivalry alone to be the incentive for us to undertake it?

Is there any ground for the opinion that good men have sometimes rushed unnecessarily into danger?

Verses 4-11.—Christians have to tarry in a town should they hunt up the followers of Jesus?

If these disciples were told "through the Spirit" that Paul should not go up to Jerusalem why did he not heed them?

If there is no record that Paul had a direct call from God to go up to Jerusalem; would that, taken in connection with what these disciples said, indicate that Paul was doing wrong in going?

Is there danger that good men may be led by pious impulses, to do unwise things, which they could be saved from if they waited to cool off, and to get the mind of God? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

If it should prove that Paul was wrong in going to Jerusalem, which finally led to his martyrdom, would that in any way lessen our respect for him, or lessen his influence upon the world?

Verses 37-41.—Should the children always be taken to church and to all religious gatherings?

Should a company of Christians, when bidding good bye to one another on the wharf, or at the railway station, feel as free to get down on their knees and pray, as they are to stand and shake hands?

Why is it that Christians are not as willing to be seen talking to God, or praying, on the street, as they are to be seen talking to their fellows?

Verses 42-43.—Who was Philip, and for what one thing is he distinguished in this gospel story?

Should Christian parents train their children from infancy to know God, to be skillful in prayer, in faith, and in good works?

Is there not a way for parents to train their children, so that the promise can be realized with absolute certainty in Joel 2:28. "Your sons and your daughters shall prophesy?"

Which is the more desirable, to have a son, or a daughter, noted for spirituality and soul saving, or for money making?

Verses 11-12.—Did this noted prophet Agabus (See Acts xi:27-28) join with the rest of the saints in saying, that the Holy Spirit told them, that Paul ought not to go to Jerusalem?

Is there any way to consistently suppose that both parties to this loving controversy were right?

Suppose Agabus and the others were right in persuading Paul not to go to Jerusalem, but that Paul still thought he ought to go, what would be Paul's duty in the circumstances?

If a good man says he has a message from God for us, are we under obligation to obey whether our judgment may concur or not?

Verses 13-17.—Can you recall in all history a greater example of fortitude and bravery than here displayed by Paul?

ROOT JUICE AT THE RELIABLE DRUG CO. DRUGSTORE.

A CONTINUAL STREAM OF EVIL DENCE FLOWING IN FROM EVERY DIRECTION—SATURDAY THE LAST DAY OF THE ROOT JUICE DEMONSTRATION.

If one can judge by the continual stream of evidence that is flowing in from every direction, the Root Juice demonstration at the Reliable Drug Co.'s drug store, has proved a great blessing to scores of people of Janesville and surrounding country. Many that have suffered a long time with some trouble of the stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys or nerves, are now claiming entire freedom from all aches and pains. Among the many recent cures at the Reliable Drug Co.'s drug store, to tell of wonderful good received from a short use of Root Juice was a gentleman who said that Root Juice had almost performed a miracle in his case: "I, before using the remedy, was weak and nervous. My appetite was poor and digestion was so bad that the lightest foods would sour on my stomach, causing a formation of gas that would press against my heart and almost cause it to stop beating at times, but after taking the Juice a short while, my appetite is good, my nerves are settled, and I digest everything I eat without a single disagreeable symptom." So many local people are praising the great remedy that its rapid sale at the Reliable Drug Co.'s drug store is no longer a surprise.

The demonstration at this point closes Saturday night. Until then the Root Juice is sold for $1 a bottle or three for $2.50. Adv. Every doctor ought to be interested in knowing how many copies of the paper depends his money in no circulations. The Gazette prints its circulation daily at the top of page 1.

How Far a Penny Goes in Advertising

Order a page of advertising in The Gazette, Daily and Semi-Weekly, and it costs only $26.82 (on a 1000 inch contract) and you reach considerably more than 7000 homes, about 2600 in Janesville and 4400 in the smaller cities and towns and rural routes, with an average of 5 to a home, in all 35,000 consumers. Thus a penny reaches 13 people with a full page story of your business or proposition. You could not reach this great number of people with any kind of a circular for less than a penny each.

Report on the Discovery of the North Pole, by Robert E. Peary, Sept. 9, 1909. Part III: Copyrighted 1909 by the New York Times Company.

Battle Harbor, Labrador (via Marconi wireless, Cape Ray, N. F.), Sept. 9.—The steamer "Roosevelt" bearing the north polar expedition of the Peary Arctic club, parted company with the Erik and steamed out of Etah ford late in the afternoon of August 18, 1908, setting the usual course for Cape Sabine. The weather was dirty, with fresh southerly winds. We had on board 22 Eskimo men, 17 women, and ten children, 226 dogs, and some forty odd walrus.

We encountered the ice a short distance from the mouth of the harbor, but it was not closely packed, and was negotiated by the Roosevelt without serious difficulty.

Strike Much Clear Water.

As we neared Cape Sabine the weather cleared somewhat and we passed close by Three Voort island and Cape Sabine, finally making out the naked eye the house at Hayes harbor occupied by me in the winter of 1901-02.

From Cape Sabine north there was no much water that we thought of getting the lug sail before the southerly wind, but a little later appearance of ice to the northward stopped this.

There was clean open water to Cape Albert, and from there scattered ice to a point about abreast of Victoria Head, thick weather and dense fog bringing us some ten or fifteen miles away.

From here we drifted south somewhat and then got upland to the northward out of the current. We worked a little further north and stopped again for some hours. Then we again worked westward and northward till we reached a series of lakes, coming to a stop a few miles south of the Windward's winter quarters at Cape Diverville.

From here, after some delay, we slowly worked a way northward through fog and broken ice of medium thickness through one night and the forenoon of the next day, only emerging into open water and clear weather off Cape Fraser.

Forced Over to Greenland.

From this point we had a clear run through the middle of Robeson channel uninterrupted by either ice or fog, to Lady Franklin bay. Here we encountered both ice and fog, and while working along in search of a practicable opening were forced across to the Greenland coast at Thank God Harbor.

The fog lifted there and enable us to make out our whereabouts and we steamed north through a series of leads past Cape Lupton, and thence southward toward Cape Union. A few miles off that cape we were stopped by impracticable ice, and we drifted back south to Cape Union, where we stopped again.

Ship Twice Driven Ashore.

We lay for some time in a lake of water, and then, to prevent being drifted south again, took refuge under the north shore of Lincoln bay, in nearly the identical place where we had our unpleasant experiences three years before. Here we remained for several days during a period of constant and at times violent north-easterly winds.

Twice we were forced aground by the heavy ice; we had our port quarter rail broken and a hole stove in the bulwarks, and twice we pushed out in an attempt to get north, but we were forced back each time to our precarious shelter.

Cape Sheridan Is Passed.

Finally on September 2 we squeezed around Cape Union and made fast in a shallow niche in the ice, but after some hours we made another short run to Black Cape and hung on to a grounded bit of ice. At last, a little after midnight of September 5, we passed through extremely heavy running ice into a stream of open water, rounded Cape Rawson and passed Cape Sheridan.

Within a quarter of an hour of the same time we arrived three years before—seven a. m., September 5—we reached the open water extending beyond Cape Sheridan.

We steamed up to the end of it and it appeared practicable at first to reach Porter bay, near Cape Joseph Henry, which I had for my winter quarters, but the outlook being unsatisfactory, I went back and put the Roosevelt into the only opening in the ice, being barred close to the mouth of the Sheridan river a little north of our position three years prior.

Prepare Quarters for Winter.

The season was further advanced than in 1905; there was more snow on the ground and the new ice inside the ice bergs was much thicker.

The work of discharging the ship was commenced at once and rushed to completion. The supplies and equipment we sledged across ice and sea and deposited on shore. A house and workshop were built of board, covered with sails, and fitted with stoves, and the ship was snug for winter in shoal water, where it touched bottom at low tide.

This settlement on the stormy shores of the Arctic ocean was christened Hubbardville.

Hunting parties were sent out on September 10 and a bear was brought in on the 12th and some deer a day or two later.

Begin Movement Over Ice.

On September 15 the full work of transferring supplies to Cape Columbia was inaugurated. Marvin with Dr. Goodall and Borup and the Eskimos, took 16 sledges loads of supplies to Cape Belknap, and on the 27th the same party started with loads to Porter bay.

The work of hunting and transporting supplies was prosecuted continuously by the members of the party and the Eskimos until November 5, when the supplies for the spring sledge trip had been removed from winter quarters and deposited at various places from Cape Colan to Cape Columbia.

The latter part of September the movement of the ice subjected the ship to a pressure which lifted it to port some eight or ten degrees, and it did not recover till the following spring.

On October 1 I went on a hunt with two Eskimos across the field and Pass bay and the peninsula, made the circuit of Clements Markham inlet, and returned to the ship in seven days with 15 musk oxen, a bear and a deer.

Later in October I repeated the trip, obtaining five musk oxen, and hunting parties secured some forty deer.

Macmillan Studies Tides.

Prof. Macmillan went to Columbia bay in November and obtained a month of tidal observations, returning in December. In the December moon Borup moved the Hoega depot to Cape Colan. Bartlett made a hunting trip overland to Lake Hazen and Hansen went to Clements Markham inlet.

Move Supplies to Base.

In the February moon Bartlett went to Cape Hecla, Goodall moved some more supplies from Hecla to Cape Colan, and Borup went to Markham inlet on a hunting trip. On February 15 Bartlett left the Roosevelt with his division for Cape Columbia and Parr bay.

Goodall, Borup, Macmillan and Hansen followed on successive days with their provisions. Marvin returned from Cape Bryant on February 17 and left for Cape Columbia on February 21. I brought up the rear on February 22.

The total of all divisions leaving the Roosevelt was seven members of the party, 59 Eskimos, 140 dogs and 23 sledges.

Prepare for Final Dash.

By February 27 such of the Cape Colan depot as was needed had been brought up to Cape Columbia, the dogs were rested and double rationed and harnessed, and the sledges and other gear overhauled.

Four months of northerly winds during the fall and winter instead of southerly ones, as during the previous season, led me to expect less open water than before, but a great deal of tough ice, and I was prepared to have a road through the jagged ice for the first hundred miles or so, then cross the big lead.

Bartlett Leads in March.

On the last day of February Bartlett, with his pioneer division, accomplished this, and his division got away due north over the ice on March 1. The rest of the party got away on Bartlett's trail, and I followed an hour later.

The party now comprised seven members of the expedition, 17 Eskimos, 133 dogs, and 19 sledges. One Eskimo and seven dogs had gone to places.

A strong easterly wind, drifting snow, and temperature in the minus marked our departure from the camp at Cape Columbia, which I had christened Crane City. Rough ice in the first march damaged several sledges and smashed two beyond repair, the teams going back to Columbia for other sledges in reserve there.

Markham's Record Is Passed.

We camped ten miles from Crane City. The easterly wind and low temperature continued. In the second march we passed the British record made by Markham in May, 1878—82.20—and were stopped by open water, which had been formed by wind after Bartlett passed.

In this march we negotiated the lead and reached Bartlett's third camp, Borup had gone back from here, but missed his way, owing to the faulting of the trail by the movement of the ice.

Marvin came back also for more fuel and alcohol. The wind continued, forming open water all about us. At the end of the fourth march we came upon Bartlett, who had been stopped by a wide lake of open water. We remained here from March 4 to March 11.

See Sun at Last.

At noon of March 5 the sun, red and shaped like a football by excessed reflection, just raised itself above the horizon for a few minutes and then disappeared again. It was the first time I had seen it since October 1.

I now began to feel a good deal of anxiety because there were no signs of Marvin and Borup, who should have been there for two days. Besides, they had the alcohol and oil, which were indispensable for us.

We concluded that they had either lost the trail or were imprisoned on an island by open water, probably the latter.

Fortunately, on March 11 the lead was practicable and, leaving a note for Marvin and Borup to push on after us by forced marches, we proceeded northward. The sounding of the lead gave 110 fathoms.

During this march we crossed the eighty-fourth parallel and traversed a succession of just frozen leads, from a few hundred yards to a mile in width. This march was really simple.

On the fourteenth we got free of the leads and came on decent going. While we were making camp a courier from Marvin came and informed me he was on the march in the rear. The temperature was 59 below zero.

The following morning, March 15, I sent Hansen with his division north to pioneer a trail for five marches, and Dr. Goodall, according to the program, started back to Cape Columbia.

Macmillan Forced to Return.

At night Marvin and Borup came splashing in with their men and dogs steaming in the bitter air like a squadron of battleships. Their arrival relieved me of all anxiety as to our oil supply.

In the morning I discovered that Macmillan's foot was badly frost bitten. The mishap had occurred two or three days before, but Macmillan had said nothing about it in the hope that it would come out all right.

A glance at the injury showed me that the only thing was to send him back to Cape Columbia at once. The arrival of Marvin and Borup enabled me to spare sufficient men and dogs to go back with him.

Loss of Macmillan Serious.

This early loss of Macmillan was seriously disappointing to me. He had a sledge all the way from Cape Columbia, and with his enthusiasm and the powers and physique of the trained athlete I had confidence in him for at least the 80th parallel, but there was no alternative.

The best sledges and dogs were selected and the sledge loads brought up to the standard. The sounding gave a depth of 325 fathoms.

We were over the continental shelf, and, as I had surmised, the successive leads crossed in the fifth and sixth marches composed the big lead and marked the continental shelf.

On leaving the camp the expedition comprised 16 men, 12 sledges and 100 dogs. The next march was satisfactory as regards distance and the character of the going. In the latter part there were pronounced movements in the ice, both visible and audible.

Some leads were crossed, in one of which Borup and his team took a bath, and we were finally stopped by an impracticable lead opening in front of us. We camped in a temperature of 50 degrees below.

At the end of two short marches we came upon Hansen and his party in camp, mending their sledges. We devoted the remainder of the day to overhauling and mending sledges and breaking up our damaged ones for material.

Marvin Pioneers the Trail.

The next morning I put Marvin in the lead to pioneer the trail, with instructions to make two forced marches to bring up our average, which had been cut down by the last two short ones. Marvin carried out his instructions implicitly. A considerable amount of young ice assisted in this.

At the end of the tenth march, latitude 85.23, Borup turned back in command of the second supporting party, having traveled a distance equivalent to Nansen's distance from this far to his farthest north.

I was sorry to lose this young Yale runner, with his enthusiasm and pluck. He had led his heavy sledge over the does in a way that commanded everyone's admiration and would have made his father's eyes glister.

Alternate in Taking Lead.

From this point the expedition comprised 20 men, 10 sledges, and 70 dogs. It was necessary for Marvin to take a sledge from here, and I put Bartlett and his division in advance to pioneer the trail.

The continual daylight enabled me to make a moderation here that brought my advance and main parties closer together and reduced the likelihood of their being separated by open leads.

After Bartlett left camp with Henderson and their division, Marvin and I remained with our divisions 20 hours longer and then followed. When we reached Bartlett's camp he broke out and went on and we turned in. By this arrangement the advance party was traveling while the main party was asleep, and vice versa, and I was in touch with my advance party every 24 hours.

Marches Without Trouble.

I had no reason to complain of the going for the next two marches, though for a less experienced party, less adaptable sledges, or less perfect equipment it would have been an impossibility.

At our position at the end of the second march, Marvin obtained a satisfactory sight for latitude in clear weather, which placed us at 85.48. The result agreed satisfactorily with the dead reckoning of Marvin, Bartlett and myself.

Up to this time, the slight altitude of the sun had made it not worth while to waste time in observations. On the next two marches the going improved, and we covered good distances. In one of these marches a lead delayed us a few hours. We finally crossed the ice cakes.

The next day Bartlett left himself out, evidently, for a record, and rooled off 20 miles. Here Marvin obtained another satisfactory sight on latitude, which gave the position as 85.38 (or beyond the farthest north of Nansen and Amundsen), and showed that we had covered 50 minutes of latitude in three marches.

In these three marches we had passed the Norwegian record of 86.14, by Nansen, and the Italian record of 86.34, by Cagni.

From this point Marvin turned back in command of the third supporting party. My last words to him were: "Be careful of the leads, my boy."

The party from this point comprised nine men, seven sledges, and 60 dogs. The conditions at this camp and the apparently unbroken expanse of fairly level ice in very direction reminded me of Cagni's description of his farthest north.

Hazy Atmosphere a Peril.

But I was not deceived by the apparently favorable outlook, for available conditions never continue for any distance or any length of time in the Arctic regions.

The next march was over good going, but for the first time since leaving land we experienced that condition, frequent over these ice fields, of a hazy atmosphere, in which the light is equal everywhere. All relief is destroyed, and it is impossible to see for any distance.

We were obliged in this march to make a detour around an open lead. In the next march we encountered the heaviest and deepest snow of the journey, through a thick, smothering mantle lying in the depressions of heavy bubble ice.

I came upon Bartlett and his party, fagged out and temporarily discouraged by the heart-breaking work of making road.

I knew what was the matter with them. They were simply spoiled by the good going on the previous marches. I rallied them a bit, lightened their sledges, and sent them on encouraged again.

During the next march we traveled through a thick haze drifting over the ice before a biting air from the north-east. At the end of the march we came upon the captain's igloo beside a wide open lead with a dense black water sky northwest, north, and north-east.

Ice Break Threatens Death.

We built our igloos and turned in, but before I had fallen asleep I was roused out by a movement of the ice and found a startling condition of affairs—a rapidly widening road of black water run only a few feet from our igloos.

One of my teams of dogs had escaped by only a few feet from being dragged by the movement of the ice into the water.

Another team had an equally narrow escape from being crushed by the ice blocks piled over them. The ice on the north side of the lead was moving around eastward. The small floor on which were the captain's igloos was drifting onward in the open water, and the side of our igloos threatened to follow suit.

Quick Dash to Safety.

Kicking out the door of the igloos I called to the captain's men to pack their sledges and be ready for a quick dash when a favorable chance arrived.

We hurried our things on our sledges, hitched the dogs, and moved on to a large ice floe west of us. Then, leaving one man to look out for the dogs and sledges, we hurried over to assist the captain's party to join us.

A corner of their raft impinged on the ice on our side. For the rest of the night and during the next day the ice suffered the torment of the damned, surging together, opening out, grinding and grinding, while the open water belched black smoke like a prairie fire.

Then the motion ceased, the open water closed, the atmosphere to the north was cleared, and we rushed across before the ice should open again.

A succession of internally open leads were crossed, and after them some heavy old ice, and then we came to a bay of young ice, some of which bucked under our sledges, and this gave us a straight way of six miles to the north.

Then came more heavy old ice, covered with snow. This was a good long march.

The next march was also a long one. It was Bartlett's last bit. He let himself out over a series of large old floes, steadily increasing in diameter and covered with hard snow.

High Wind Aids Safety.

During the last few miles I walked beside him or in advance. He was solemn and anxious to go further, but the program was for him to go back from here in command of the fourth supporting party, and there were no supplies for an increase in the main party.

In this march we encountered a high wind for the first time since the three days after we left Cape Columbia. It was dead in our faces, bitter and insistent, but I had no reason to complain. It was better than an easterly or southerly wind, either of which would have set us adrift in open water, while this was closing up every lead behind.

This furnished another advantage of my supporting parties. True, by so doing it was pressing to the south the ice over which we traveled, and so robbing us of a hundred miles of advantage.

We concluded we were on or near the eighty-eighth parallel, unless the north wind had lost us several miles. The wind blew all night and all next day.

At this camp, in the morning, Bartlett started to walk five or six miles to the north to make sure of reaching the eighty-eighth parallel. While he was gone I selected the 40 best dogs in the outfit and had them doubled.

I picked out five of the best sledges and assigned them expressly to the captain's party. I broke up the seventh for material with which to repair the others and set Eskimos at this work.

Bartlett returned in time to take a satisfactory observation for latitude in clear weather, and obtained for our position 87.18, and that showed that the continued north wind had robbed us of a number of miles of hard-earned distance.

Bartlett took the observation here, as had Marvin five camps back, partly to save my eyes, but largely to give an independent record and determination of our advance.

The observations completed and two copies made, one for him and the other for me, Bartlett started on the back trail in command of my fourth supporting party, with two Eskimos, one sledge, and 18 dogs.

Great Honors for Bartlett.

When he left I felt for a moment pang of regret as he disappeared in the distance, but it was only momentary. My work was still ahead, not in the rear.

Bartlett had done good work and had been a great help to me. Circumstances had thrust the brunt of the pioneering upon him instead of dividing it among several, as I had planned. He had reason to take pride in the fact that he had bettered the Italian record by a degree and a quarter and had covered a distance equal to the entire distance of the Italian expedition from Franz Josef's land to Cagni's farthest north.

I had given Bartlett this position and post of honor in command of my fourth and last supporting party, and for two reasons: first, because of his magnificent handling of the Roosevelt; second, because he had cheerfully stood between me and many trifling annoyances on the expeditions. Then there was a third reason. It seemed to me appropriate, in view of the magnificent British record of Arctic work, covering three centuries, that it should be a British subject who could boast that, next to an American, he had been nearest to the pole.

ROBERT E. PEARY.

Commander Peary's narrative will be continued in to-morrow's issue.

Had Cause for Complaint.

A big, blue-bodied man of about middle age shuffled into the poor law guardian's office and curtsy bade the clerk good-morning.

"Vot 'yoor man," he began, by "kinekin" or poor Wilder Snagg's parish pay? She's a one, 'ard workin' woman, whose nose is in the wash tub all day, an' it's a wicked shame to rob 'er of 'er lawful rights."

The clerk took down a big ledger and silently consulted it.

"Mrs. Snagg has married again," he said, "and the guardians have decided that she is no longer entitled to outdoor relief; and, in any event, my man," he added sharply, "I should like to know if the matter is any concern of yours?"

"Concern of mine?" the man repeated. "Well, if you stops the old lady's pay you stops my daily ounce of shag an' quart of beer, too! I'm 'er noo 'usband!"—Answers.

NO KNOCKOUT FOR JOHNSON.

Champion Fails to Whip Kaufman Out Has Better of Fight.

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—In a contest unique in local prize-fight annals Jack Johnson was accredited with a "newspaper" decision over Al. Kaufman at the end of ten rounds of fighting at Coffer's arena.

According to the articles of agreement, if both men were on their feet when ten rounds had been fought no decision was to be given. Referee Eddie Smith, however, stated Johnson was entitled to the verdict. Kaufman gained strength at the end while Johnson was weakening. There were no knockdowns.

James Brennan, aged seven, was run over and killed by an automobile in which Al. Kaufman was returning from the arena after the fight.

Trees Have Retrograded.

It seems strange that though Hobson was the seat of the earliest civilization in Palestine, to-day the inhabitants of the surrounding country are wild and fierce and spend their days roaming about with their flocks, camels and asses, traveling from valley to valley in search of food, pitching their tents, just as their ancestors did 1,000 years ago.

While the seeds of the dowry, an East African leguminous tree, are extensively used for food the pods and leaves form an excellent cement when mixed with crushed stone.

MILLMAN GIRL SLAIN ON OPERATING TABLE

Discovery of All Fragments of Body May Lead to Arrest of Another Doctor.

Detroit, Sept. 10.—Further arrests are expected to-day as a result of new evidence found by the police following the discovery of the missing portions of Maybelle Millman's body, which clinched former proof that she died from a surgical operation.

The gruesome find was brought to Detroit and examined by coroner's physicians, who announced that the girl undoubtedly had met her death on an operating table.

Sheriff Gaston went to Ann Arbor with Martha Henning, the chum of the dead girl, whose statements to the police resulted in the apprehension of Dr. George A. Fritch. Dr. Fritch is still held by the police, but the arrest of another doctor is probable. Before she was returned to her home Miss Henning made a statement to Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile and Captain of Detectives McDonnell, in which the name of a second physician was mentioned. This statement resulted in the apprehension of a woman who formerly lived at Ann Arbor, who had advised Miss Millman to go to another physician. The woman was brought to police headquarters after Miss Henning had made her statement and was spirited away to her home by detectives after she had told her story.

FLOOD FATAL TO HUNDREDS.

Many More Mexicans Reported Dead in Ragging Waters.

Monterey, Mexico, Sept. 10.—Word was received from Nixtencatl, in the state of Tlaxcala, that the entire country was inundated along the Tampico branch of the Mexican Central railroad between the San Juan river and La Cruz. Several towns report loss of life ranging from a few up to five hundred persons in some instances.

Eastern Iowa Home-Coming.

Koszin, Ia., Sept. 10.—The Iowa River Valley Old Settlers' association is holding its annual picnic here to-day, and as usual the event is the occasion of a great "home-coming" by former residents of eastern Iowa. The little town is crowded to the limit and all kinds of festivities are in progress. The address of the day was delivered by J. C. Deem of Waterloo.

To Fight Bubonic Plague.

Washington, Sept. 10.—Special attention is being given by the public health and marine hospital service to the prevention of bubonic plague on the Pacific coast. Surgeon General Wyman probably will go to San Francisco about the middle of October.

Wooden Shack Better Than Tent.

The common notion that a tent is especially hygienic is, in fact, incorrect. It is far less hygienic than a wooden shack, because the air is more confined and there are no windows to open. The best shelter for invalids camping in a dry region, like the Arizona desert, is made of four posts supporting wire netting into which branches of some tree have been woven, leaving just enough light to read by.

AEROPLANES WILL SOON BE NUMEROUS

Automobile Manufacturer Predicts That in Ten Years They Will Not Excite Comment.

New York, Sept. 10.—In ten years aeroplanes will be in general use by private citizens for business and pleasure, not perhaps to so great an extent as the automobile is now but to such a degree that their appearance will excite no comment whatever. This at least is the prediction of an American automobile manufacturer who has just returned from the aviation contests at Rheims. As a result of the progress shown at this meeting and of the enthusiasm aroused by the victory of Glenn H. Curtiss in his American machine, no less than a dozen big concerns in and about this city are rushing plans for the manufacture of various types of air craft. Several of these are companies now engaged in making automobiles who propose to take on the manufacture of air cars as a side line and one such big firm is already advertising its readiness to supply aeroplanes to all who may care to purchase. Others propose to devote themselves exclusively to meeting the demands of air navigators. One curious development of the interest in this subject is that the demand for designers and pattern-makers exceeds the supply and the pattern-makers union announces from its headquarters here that scores of experienced workmen can obtain employment if they can be found on account of the sudden activity in the making of patterns for aerial craft.

NEW MAJOR TO HAVE CHARGE OF MEETING

Major Morton, of Salvation Army, Recently Appointed to Speak at Special Meeting Saturday Night.

Major Morton, now divisional officer of the Salvation Army of Wisconsin, will hold a special meeting at the Salvation Army hall, Saturday evening, September 11, at 8:30 o'clock. The major has been but recently appointed to the position, with headquarters in Milwaukee, and he will be welcomed to this city by Captain and Mrs. Fleming, the comrades of the army and their friends. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services. The major is a live one, has been in the service of the army, and will have much to tell that will prove of interest to all—some things that you cannot well afford to miss hearing. The usual open air service will be held at 7:30 at the corner of West Milwaukee and River streets.

Captain and Mrs. Fleming also solicit aid, in money or gifts, for their harvest festival.

AMERICANS ADMIRE GERMAN DEMOCRACY

Say Members of Royal Family More Democratic Than Yankee Plutocrats.

New York, Sept. 10.—Germany, which we are accustomed to think of as a land where rigid distinctions of class are enforced, really has more democracy and less snobbishness in its social life than has the United States, according to the statements of American visitors who have just returned from attendance at the five hundredth anniversary of the University of Leipzig, one of the largest as well as one of the oldest institutions of higher learning in Europe. The final act of the jubilee which the foreign visitors were invited to attend was the holding of a "bonhomie" or students' drinking party. The King of Saxony presided at this affair, and he, with the Crown Prince, who is a student at Leipzig, mingled on terms of perfect equality with the enthusiastic undergraduates. In the course of the evening the King made a little speech in which he defended German students against the charge of excessive drinking and declared that their best drinking customs represented the truest temperance. He added humorously that he could not imagine the achievements of the German nation and of German scholarship to be founded upon the consumption of anything but raspberry juice. At the conclusion of the address King, princes, celebrities and students mingled their glasses at a single draught in accordance with undergraduate custom. While both Leipzig and Heidelberg have educated many royal princes, these young men invariably conduct themselves with more modesty and good fellowship toward their less distinguished fellow students, the American visitors declare, than do the sons of the average millionaire in our own institutions.

CUPID'S ACTIVITY SHOWS PROSPERITY

Increase in Number of Marriages Said to Be Conclusive Proof of Return of Good Times.

New York, Sept. 10.—While the discussion as to why marriages are decreasing in New York has been going on and all sorts of explanations and reasons have been brought forward to account for this supposed condition, the records which have been accumulating in the marriage license bureau of the city show that instead of a serious falling off in the number of marriages there has been a decided increase during each month of the present summer over the corresponding period of 1908. In June this increase was a trifle over five hundred while for July and August it amounts to slightly less than a thousand. The officials in charge of these records declare that the influences affecting the marriage rate are primarily industrial and not social and they see in the return of the conditions prevailing before the panic of two years ago the most convincing evidence of the improvement of business and of general employment for wage-workers. The fact that Cupid is once more almost as busy as he was in the flush times of 1907 may be accepted as conclusive proof, they assert, that widespread prosperity actually has returned—a conclusion that is borne out by many other indications.

Gotham Displays Its Riches.

Nowhere in the world are the outward, visible evidences of wealth more impressive than in New York. The estimated value of the real estate in Gotham is about two and a quarter times greater than all the money in circulation in the United States.

Relic of Ancient Sculpture.

During excavations conducted near Willendorf, on the Danube, by the prehistoric section of the Austrian Natural History museum, a chalk figurine, 11 centimeters high, has been discovered in stratum containing instruments and weapons characteristic of the stone age. The figurine shows traces of having been painted and represents a female figure with remarkable precision of artistic execution.

A MILLION DOLLARS FOR NEW YORK FETE

New York, Sept. 10.—Probably never before in the history of any city has so much money been lavished on a single civic celebration as will be expended by New York during the final days of this month in its combined observance of the three hundredth anniversary of Hendrick Hudson's discovery of the river that bears his name and the centennial of Fulton's invention of the steamboat. Five hundred thousand dollars is being raised by public subscription to pay the expenses of the Hudson-Fulton commission which has charge of the general arrangements. The Hudson monument which is being erected under the auspices of a committee of prominent men on Spuyten Duyvil hill at the point where the great explorer had his first encounter with the Indians will cost a hundred thousand dollars. The outlay for private decorations and appropriations made for various purposes will amount to a quarter of a million and the official Hudson-Fulton dinner, which is to be given on Sept. 29 at the Hotel An-tor, will represent an expenditure of between fifty and sixty thousand dollars additional. Three thousand guests are expected to assemble at this dinner and five thousand dollars is being expended to prepare the decorations for the banquet room, including mural paintings by well-known artists especially done for this occasion. Altogether New York will spend over a million dollars on processions, decorations, illumination and other plans for honoring the memory of two of the most famous men connected with her history. Apparently every imaginable contingency has been provided for except the matter of taking care of the vast throngs of spectators. This is causing some uneasiness as it is estimated that between four and five million people will assemble to witness some of the spectacles—a crowd large enough to tax the resources of even the metropolis.

SATURDAY —OUR— WALL PAPER SALE BEGINS

Just why people feel that Spring is a better time to buy Wall Paper than fall is one of the questions that remains unsolved.

The work can usually be done better in the fall, as more paper hangers are at leisure than in the spring.

The papers are certainly as attractive as they ever were, yet people always wait until spring when everyone is rushed.

HOWEVER, it has been our custom to clean up stock in the fall, so as to have nothing but new papers in the spring showing.

Therefore Every Paper in Stock is Offered at About
Cost Price

Our stock includes most every design conceivable and right now you can make selections at handsome savings. It will even pay to buy now for use in the spring.

Special Showing Monday, Sept. 13, of Fall Suits and Coats

By the Agent of One of New York's Largest Manufacturers. A Great Sale For One Day Only.

GREATEST SUIT AND COAT SHOWING EVER OFFERED IN ROCK COUNTY

We want to make plain to you the marked advantages of buying your fall suit and coat here and at this showing.

Right now our stock of fall suits and coats is the largest in Janesville, comprising about 300 new 1909 fall models, that for excellence of style, or workmanship, or materials, are not equalled at the prices we are making. This is to be our fall opening sale and to our large and unsurpassed stock we will add the entire sample line of one of New York's largest makers, including hundreds of suits for juniors, misses and women, as well as all sample coats for children, juniors, misses and women. We are going to show some truly new and beautiful models of new weave home-spuns and rough materials of mannish effect, some very plain tailored, others elaborately trimmed. All have the new plaited skirts. But the hit of the fall style fashions is the "Morgan Age" style, which means "the highest qualities of the middle ages." This style of suits and coats promises to be the choice of refined dresses and is already very popular in the metropolitan style centers. This style is best described as a coat with plaited skirt and is shown in coats for women, misses, juniors and children, as well as in the suits. In the suits both the coat and the skirt are plaited, making a very swagger effect. Suits are priced $10 and up. A few good numbers are quoted below:

Junior suit of hard twisted worsted, invisible stripe, coat lined throughout, metal rimmed buttons to match, plain tailored slashed coat, skirt button trimmed, $10.

A swell suit of fine broadcloth, guaranteed lining, coat 45 inches long, plaited back and side, pocket effects, welt seams, jet button trimming, skirt made full, plaits to the knees, welt seams and large inverted seam down center, finely tailored in black and all colors. All sizes, $30 value, on sale this day only at $20.00.

Suits of satin finish, invisible stripe serge, elaborately trimmed with Jub buttons, self stripe bands and silk cord button loops. Dutch color band cuffs, semi-fitting 45-in. coat, skirt trimmed with jet buttons, plaited to knee height all around, excellent workmanship, guaranteed lining. A garment that would not look high priced in a city window at $50.00, our price $30.00.

At This Great Opening Sale We
Will Introduce the "Jeanette"
Rain and Travel Coats

A distinctly new and handsome line of coats, in all the latest autumn colors. Three styles, tight fitting, semi-fitting and loose fitting. Jeanette coats are made of all wool Prunellas, Henriettas and serges that have been rubberized. These coats do not resemble the silk-rubberized coats in any way, though the process of rubberizing is similar. We promise that they will give excellent service, wearing much better than a rubberized silk coat. They shed dust and rain, are wind proof and will not wrinkle. Priced $15.00. Others more elaborately made at higher prices. Our showing of coats is complete in every detail. See these specials:

A beautiful gray coat with just a little green mixture, full length of Covert material, small patch pockets, 3/4 fitting, slashed back, cuffs on pockets, bone buttons to match, $20.00.

Tan Covert, full length, cloth covered buttons, novelty pockets and cuffs, 3/4 fitting, half satin lined. A $15.00 value at $10.00.

Children's fall jackets, in all colors and sizes, are offered at half price.

A complete showing of new fall undershirts to match the suits.

Guaranteed taffeta silk skirt, made extra full, flounce 18 inches, all colors, $6.50 value at $5 for this day only.

Hygrade skirts, like heatherbloom, 13-in. embroidered flounce, 95c. Many other excellent values.

The Lesson of Leprosy.

The main lesson of leprosy is somewhat philosophic. All Europe for centuries was covered with it, but the quick, strong reactive blood of the white race strangled the germs of death, so it is doubtful if whites could ever be pestered much again. Yellow races, of slower, weaker blood, are still slowly atoning with it.

Old Linoleum or Oilcloth Made Just LIKE NEW

LET LINOLEUM LUSTRE BRIGHTEN UP YOUR HOME

Or if your linoleum or oilcloth be new SAVE IT with Linoleum Lustre. You can keep either fresh for years—just the way they come from the store. Linoleum Lustre will preserve the color and pattern so that the original brightness will be retained and increase the wearing qualities of the floor covering so that it will last indefinitely, no matter how hard it is used. Linoleum Lustre is not like anything else you have ever heard of in your life. It will not crack or blister, hot and cold water do not affect it, nor does any heat or cold. It is so easy to apply that a child can do so, and it will dry over night. It will PAY FOR ITSELF over and over again, year after year. It will be the best investment you have ever made for your home, because after you buy Linoleum Lustre JUST ONCE, and apply it, you can stop buying linoleum and oilcloth. What you have will last you and you will have no more worn spots to be ashamed of or patch up. Do not confuse Linoleum Lustre with floor varnish. It is a preservative lustre which will make your floor covering twice as easy to clean and saves it from wear.

How Linoleum Lustre Makes Old Linoleum or Oilcloth Like New

Are you ashamed to have visitors come into your home? Because you know there are worn spots in the linoleum, the coloring has become dull and the figure lost, and you don't want your guests to get the impression that you are allowing your home to get run down. And yet you don't feel just like buying out more money in floor covering again so soon. You can remedy this quickly at small expense.

If you will only buy a quart can of Linoleum Lustre, which covers 160 square feet—it will cost you much less than new floor covering—and apply it in the evening—even your little boy or girl could do it—it will be dry in the morning. And the former brightness of the coloring and pattern will be restored, if it's the kind of linoleum in which the figures go clear through. If it's the kind that comes with the figures only on the upper side, so long as they are not entirely worn away, Linoleum Lustre will brighten it up, give it a richness of tone and such durability that it will last for years without wearing through.

Linoleum Lustre also puts a protective coating over the floor covering, which, while it dries hard and wears like iron, thus preserving the life of the linoleum or oilcloth, still remains elastic like these materials themselves and therefore will not crack or check. Linoleum Lustre will make your old linoleum or oilcloth look like new, or if you buy new, it will keep that from ever looking like the old.

Linoleum Lustre Means Real Home Economy

If a coat of paint would save the wheels of your buggy or carriage from going to pieces, you'd put it on, wouldn't you? Put Linoleum Lustre on that half worn-out linoleum or oilcloth and save it from going to pieces.

It would be just as foolish not to paint the wheels of a new buggy or the woodwork of a new veranda, as it is to lay new linoleum on your floor without applying Linoleum Lustre at once, now that you know all about it.

In former years the principle drawback to linoleum, even a popular floor covering, has been the continual uncertainties of wear, in which the color became dull and the pattern lost in spots, making it shabby. Linoleum Lustre, by removing this objectionable feature, has added to the popularity of the material. At a very little expense you can brighten up your home, give it a fresh, clean, healthy appearance, make it look well kept, in fact, with the indefinable air of prosperity.

Now, once again. Don't get Linoleum Lustre confused with varnish and other objectionable finishes. There never has been and never will be anything like it. It not only makes a protective coating for the floor covering, but infuses itself into the material, taking hold of every color, no matter what and keeping it always bright as well as strengthening the entire fabric. It is flexible, quick-drying and glossy, yet without sticky look, able to resist the roughest wear and shed water like a polished floor. It mops easily, hence quickly cleaned.

Try Linoleum Lustre. Apply one coat, just one. It will do the work for you. For sale at your dealer.

Illustration by ARTHUR

"My dear friend, there are no speculators here, and there are no tickets to be had. You might as well ask for the moon!"

"I can stand, then. I'm not afraid of getting tired."

"There are no standing places at all! No one is allowed to go in who has not a seat. A week ago you might possibly have picked up one in Munich, given up by some one at the last moment, but such chances are jumped at. I wonder that you even got a place to sleep!"

"Well, it's not much of a place," said Mr. Van Torp, thoughtfully. "There's one room the size of a horse-box, one bed, one basin, one pitcher and one towel, and I've brought my valet with me. I've concluded to let him sleep while I'm at the opera, and he'll sit up when I want to go to bed. I'll ask Cox. I don't know what he'll say, for there's no chair, but he's got to sit."

Margaret laughed, for he amused her. "I suppose you're exaggerating a little bit," she said. "It's not really quite so bad as that, is it?"

"It's worse. There's a lunatic in the next room who calls me E. Sharp through the door, and has lodged a complaint against me because I whistled while I was shaving. It's not a very good hotel. Who is E. Sharp, anyway? Maybe that was the name of the last man who occupied that room. I don't know, but I don't like the idea of having a mad German planist for a neighbor. He may get in while I'm asleep, and think I'm the piano, and hammer the life out of me, the way they do. I've seen a perfectly sane fellow wrecked in a single concert by a fellow who didn't look as if he had the strength to kick a mosquito. They're so deceptive, pianists! Nervous men are often like that, and most pianists are nothing but nerves and hair."

He amused her, for she had never seen him in his present mood.

"E sharp is a note," she said. "On the piano it's the same as F natural. You must have been whistling something your neighbor knew, and you made a mistake, and nervous musicians really suffer if one does that. But it must have been something rather complicated, to have an E sharp in it. It wasn't 'Shawnee River,' nor the 'Washington Post,' either! Indeed, I should rather like to know what it was."

"Old times I picked up when I was cow-punching, years ago," answered Mr. Van Torp. "I don't know where they came from, for I never asked, but they're not like other tunes, that's certain, and I like them. They remind me of the old days out west."

"If He's the Fellow We Used to Call Levi Longlegs on the Ranch."

"When I had no money and nothing to worry about."

"I'm very fond of whistling, too," Margaret said. "I study all my parts by whistling them, so as to save my voice."

"Really! I had no idea that was possible."

"Quite. Perhaps you whistle very well. Won't you let me hear the tune that irritated your neighbor, the planist? Perhaps I know it, too."

"Well," said Mr. Van Torp, "I suppose I could. I should be a little shy before you," he added, quite naturally. "If you'll excuse me, I'll just go and stand before the window so that I can't see you. Perhaps I can manage it that way."

Margaret, who was bored to the verge of collapse on the off-days, thought him much nicer than he had formerly been, and she liked his perfect simplicity.

"Stand anywhere you like," she said, "but let me hear the tune."

Van Torp rose and went to the window and she looked quietly at his square figure and his massive, sandy head and his strong neck. Presently he began to whistle, very softly and perfectly in tune. Many a street-boy could do as well, no doubt, and Mrs. Rushmore would have called it a vulgar accomplishment, but the magnificent prima donna was too true a musician, as well as a singer, not to take pleasure in a sweet sound, even if it were produced by a street-boy.

But as Mr. Van Torp went on, she opened her eyes very wide and held her breath. There was no mistake about it; he was whistling long pieces from "Parafal," as far as it was possible to convey an idea of such music by such means. Margaret had studied it before coming to Bayreuth, in order to understand it better; she had now already heard it once, and had felt the greatest musical emotion of her life—one that had stirred other emotions, too, strange ones quite new to her.

She held her breath and listened, and her eyes that had been wide open in astonishment, slowly closed again in pleasure, and presently, when he reached the "Good Friday" music, her own unwhistled voice floated out with her unconscious breath, in such perfect unison with his high whistling that at first he did not understand; but when he did, the rough hard man shivered suddenly and stood still, and Margaret's voice went on alone, with faintly breathed words and, with without them, following the instrumentation to the end of the scene, beyond what he had ever heard.

Then there was silence in the room, and neither of the two moved for some moments, but at last Van Torp turned, and came back.

"Thank you," he said, in a low voice. Margaret smiled and passed her hand over her eyes quickly, as if to dispel a vision she had seen. Then she spoke.

"Do you really not know what that music is?" she asked. "Really, really?"

"Oh, quite honestly I don't!"

"You're not joking? You're not laughing at me?"

"I'm not laughing at you."

"You've been whistling some of 'Parafal,' some of the most beautiful music that ever was written—and you whistle unwhistled, for it's anything but easy! Where in the world did you learn it? Don't tell me that those are 'old times' you picked up on a California ranch!"

"It's true, all the same," Van Torp answered.

He told her of the two foreigners who used to whistle together in the evenings, and how one was supposed to have been shot and the other had disappeared, no one had known whether, or not he cared.

"All sorts of young fellows used to drift out there," he said, "and one couldn't tell where they came from, though I can give a guess at where some of them must have been, since I've seen the world. There were younger sons of English gentlemen, fellows whose fathers were genuine lords, maybe, who had not brains enough to get into the army or the church. There were cashed-out Prussian officers, and Frenchmen who had most likely killed women out of jealousy, and Sicilian bandits, and broken society men from New York. There were all sorts, and there was me. And we all spoke different kinds of English and had different kinds of tastes, good and bad—mostly bad. There was only one thing we could all do alike, and that was to ride."

"I never thought of you as riding," Margaret said.

"Well, why should you? But I can, because I was just a common cow-boy and had to, for a living."

"It's intensely interesting—what a strange life you have had! Tell me more about yourself, won't you?"

"There's not much to tell, it seems to me," said Van Torp. "From being a cow-boy I turned into a miner, and struck a little silver, and I made that and got into nickel, and I made the Nickel Trust what it is, more by financing it than anything else, and I got almost all of it. And now I've sold the whole thing."

"Sold the Nickel Trust?" Margaret was quite as much surprised as Lady Maud had been.

"Yes, I wasn't made to do one thing long, I suppose. If I were, I should still be a cow-boy. Just now, I'm here to go to 'Parafal,' and since you say those tunes are out of that opera, I dare say I'm going to like it very much."

"It's all very uncanny," Margaret said thoughtfully. "I wonder who those two men were, and what became of the one who disappeared."

"I've a strong impression that I saw him in New York the other day," Van Torp answered. "If I'm right, he's made money—doing quite well, I should think. It wouldn't surprise me to hear he'd got together a million or so."

"Really? What is he doing? Your stories grow more and more interesting."

"If he's the fellow we used to call Levi Longlegs on the ranch, he's a Russian now. I'm not perfectly sure, for he had no hair on his face then, and now he has a beard like a French sapper. But the eyes and the nose and the voice and the accent are the same, and the age would about correspond. Handsome man, I suppose you'd call him. His name is Krallinsky just at present, and he's found a whole mine of rubles somewhere."

"Really? I love rubles. They are my favorite stones."

"Are they? That's funny. I've got an ancient one in my pocket now, if you'd like to see it. I believe it comes from Krallinsky's mine, too, though I got it through a friend of yours, two or three days ago."

"A friend of mine?"

He was poking his large fingers into one of the pockets of his waistcoat in search of the stone.

"Mr. Logotheti," he said, just as he found it. "He's discovered a handsome young woman from Tartary, or somewhere, who has a few rubles to sell that look very much like Krallinsky's. This is one of them."

He had unwrapped the stone now and he offered it to her, holding it out in the palm of his hand. She took it delicately and laid it in her own, which was so white that the gem shed a delicate pumpegrano-colored light on the skin all round it. She admired it, turned it over with one finger, held it up towards the window, and laid it in her palm again.

But Van Torp had set her thinking about Logotheti and the Tartar girl. She put out her hand to give back the ruby.

"I should like you to keep it, if you will," he said. "I shall forget the pleasure I've had in seeing you like this, but you'll forget all about our meeting here—the stone may just make you remember it sometimes."

He spoke so quietly, so gently, that she was taken off her guard, and was touched, and very much surprised to feel that she was. She looked into his eyes rather cautiously, remembering how she had formerly seen something terrifying in them if she looked an instant too long; but now they made her think of the eyes of a large affectionate bulldog.

"You're very kind to want to give it to me," she answered after a moment's hesitation, "but I don't like to accept anything so valuable, now that I'm engaged to be married. Konstantin might not like it. But you're so kind; give me any little thing of no value that you have in your pocket, for I mean to remember this day, indeed I do!"

"I gave nothing for the ruby," said Van Torp, still not taking it from her, "so it has no value for me. I wouldn't offer you anything that cost me money, now, unless it was a theater for your own. Perhaps the thing's glass, after all; I've not shown it to any jeweler. The girl made me take it, because I helped her in a sort of way. When I wanted to pay for it she tried to throw it out of the window. So I had to accept it to calm her down, and she went off and left no address, and I thought I'd like you to have it, if you would."

"Are you quite sure you did not pay for it?" Margaret asked. "If we are going to be friends, you must please always be very accurate."

"I've told you exactly what happened," said Van Torp. "Won't you take it now?"

"Yes, I will, and thank you very much indeed. I love rubles, and this is a beauty, and not preposterously big. I think I shall have it set as it is, uncut, and only polished, so that it will always be itself, just as you gave it to me. I shall think of the 'Good Friday' music and the chiming, and this hideous little room, and your clever whistling, whenever I look at it."

"You're kind to mention," said Mr. Van Torp, after a moment's debate as to whether he should say anything at all.

"Am I? You mean that I used to be very disagreeable, don't you?" She smiled as he glanced at him. "I must have been, I'm sure, for you used to frighten me over so much. But I'm not in the least afraid of you now!"

"Why should any one be afraid of me?" asked Van Torp, whose smile had been known to terrify Wall Street when a "drip" was expected.

Margaret laughed a little, without looking at him.

"Tell me all about the Tartar girl," she said, instead of answering his question.

Van Torp told her Krallinsky's history, as far as he knew it from Logotheti.

"I never heard such an amusing set of stories as you are telling me to-day," she said.

"That particular one is Logotheti's," he answered, "and he can probably tell you much more about the girl."

"Is she really very pretty?" Margaret asked.

"Well," said Van Torp, quoting a saying of his favorite great man, "for people who like that kind of thing, I should think that would be the kind of thing they'd like."

The prima donna smiled.

"Can you describe her?" she asked.

"Did you ever read a fairy story about a mouse that could turn into a tiger when it liked?" Inquired the American in a tone of profound meditation, as if he were contemplating a vision which Margaret could not see.

"No," said she, "I never did."

DR. COOK'SAILS ON SATURDAY

WILL ARRIVE ABOUT SEPTEMBER 20 TO MEET PEARY'S CHARGES.

CAN'T GET TO GREENLAND

Impossible to Bring His Eskimos to Prove Story Before Next Spring—Aid Offered by J. P. Morgan—Arbitration Is Suggested.

Copenhagen, Sept. 10.—Coolly asserting that Peary's charges that he did not reach the north pole are false, Dr. Frederick E. Cook hurriedly arranged to sail to-morrow from Christiansand for New York, where he will arrive about September 20 and produce his proofs.

Dr. Cook will leave here to-night for Christiansand. He has abandoned his proposed visit to Brussels on the advice of friends. The explorer spent the night at Count Holstein's castle. With him were Dr. Egan, the American minister, and Miss Egan.

Dr. Cook has asked the officials of the Danish Greenland administration to arrange for the dispatch of one of their boats to Greenland at his expense to get the two Eskimos who accompanied him to the pole. The officials stated that it is now too late in the season for such an attempt, and advised him that he must wait for spring, which he will do. He proposed to land at Godthaab, who is here with his yacht Fedora, that they make a start for Greenland immediately, but Holstein would not agree to this.

It is reported that J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York banker, has offered to supply Dr. Cook with all the money he needs.

Papers Full of Controversy.

The Copenhagen papers are full of the controversy. Almost all of them support Dr. Cook's claims, but throw no new light on the subject. Capt. Amundsen is one of the strongest supporters of the explorer, who is now backed up by Dr. Edward Bay, the zoologist of the expedition under Capt. Sverdrup in the Fram in 1898-1902. On that expedition Capt. Sverdrup made highly important scientific investigations and it was over the route mapped by Sverdrup that Cook made his journey northward.

Dr. Hay had a long interview with Dr. Cook, at the conclusion of which he said that, while at the first he had doubted Cook's story, he was now certain of its truth so far as the route claimed to be taken was concerned. Dr. Cook, he said, gave him accurate descriptions of places and things which no other white man except Hay had ever seen.

Dr. Hay asserted that the Danes in Greenland were unfriendly to Commander Peary because they believed he treated the Eskimos badly and forced them to work for him.

The University of Copenhagen conferred upon Dr. Cook the honorary degree of doctor of science (Honoris Causa) in the presence of more than a thousand people, who cheered the explorer heartily. In thanking the rector, Dr. Torp, for the honor, Dr. Cook said that the university should be the first to see his proofs.

New York, Sept. 10.—The battle for the north pole honors is now on, and a history-making controversy is expected by both sides. Commander Robert E. Peary, whose claim that he discovered the north pole on April 6, 1909, is not doubted by any authority, is feeling his way down the Labrador coast in the arctic, exploring vessel Roosevelt, stopping only long enough to take on coal and send dispatches which more than intimate his belief that Dr. Frederick E. Cook did not discover the pole on April 21, 1908. Peary and his party are expected to land at Sydney, Nova Scotia, and come from there by rail to New York.

Thinks Peary Will Arbitrate.

New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Sept. 10.—Herbert L. Bridgman was shocked when he learned of the death by drowning of Prof. Ross G. Marvin, one of the members of the Peary expedition.

With regard to the offer of the United States coast and geodetic survey to arbitrate the controversy, Mr. Bridgman said: "I know that Commander Peary will be perfectly satisfied to abide by its verdict."

"Cook's two witnesses," continued Mr. Bridgman, "are sixteen to twenty years of age. Commander Peary, in a series of conversations with the natives, found that Cook's letters were not written where dated. It may be that the natives did not tell the truth to Commander Peary. It will depend largely on the natives' testimony whether Cook was where he claims to have been."

Oxygen in Air of Mars.

Houston, Sept. 10.—Observations announced by Prof. Percival Lowell, the astronomer, here, indicate the presence of oxygen in the atmosphere of Mars. Prof. Lowell is convinced that oxygen in the air would make life as known upon the earth possible on Mars.

Newell Elected Railroad President.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 10.—The directors of the Tennessee Central railroad elected Ashbel B. Newell of Chicago president to succeed George W. Ristine, resigned. Mr. Newell was formerly superintendent of the National Railways of Mexico.

DEPARTMENT OF NOTICES.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

"N-O he didn't exactly hurt me," said the lady, who had spent the afternoon in the dentist's chair, when we asked if it had been a pleasant afternoon, "but I was so afraid he was going to every minute that it was just about as hard to bear."

"That's bad enough, but I've known people who were even worse than that—who suffered in anticipation a morning or a whole day before their dentist's appointment."

How many of us take a dentist's chair attitude towards life?

It's not today's troubles that we suffer the most from. It's the troubles that may come tomorrow.

It's not today's task that's beyond us. We just do that. It's the task of tomorrow that seems utterly impossible.

Did you ever read the fairy story about the betrothed girl who went down cellar to draw a jug of wine for her betrothed and the rest of the company to make merry with?

While she was waiting for the jug to fill she noticed upon the wall above her a crossbar which the mason, by an oversight, had forgotten to remove.

At once she both thought her that if she should marry her betrothed and have children, very likely some day when one of them came down stairs to draw some wine, that crossbar would work loose and fall and kill him.

And in a short time she was weeping heartbrokenly over that terrible misfortune.

Hilarious, you say.

But aren't some of your misfortunes just a wee bit similar?

"If I get sick," "If I lose my position," "If the girl gives notice," "If Elsie doesn't pass at school," "If the dressmaker ruins my new dress"—how long since you've distressed yourself with one of these or some similar wall?

Strike out all of your troubles that are built on "ifs" and see if you don't reduce the sum total by half.

Did you ever hear what Edward Everett Hale said about worrying?

"Never bear more than one kind of trouble at once," he advised a young friend, and added, "Some people bear all three kinds—all they have had, all they have now, and all they expect to have."

The men and women who accomplish the most without breaking down are those who are able when their day's work is done to put it completely from them, to refuse to let either the recollection of today's or the fear of tomorrow's cares intrude upon their hours of rest.

In a beautiful home where I am sometimes a guest this wise verse hangs above my head.

It's addressed to guests, but it is quite as good for stay-at-homes. It is applied to the hours of sleep, but it's quite as good for those of leisure.

"Sleep sweetly within this quiet room
My guest, when thou art,
And let no mortal's heart be
Disturb thy peaceful heart,
Nor let tomorrow's fight thy breast
With dreams of coming ill.
Thy Maker is thy chancel's friend,
His love surrounds thee still."
